Rated The #1 Tasting Vodka In The World.

In 1998, the Beverage Testing Institute of Chicago conducted a blind taste test of more than 80 vodkas. They awarded points based on smoothness, nose, and most importantly, taste. Of all the vodkas, Grey Goose® Vodka emerged victorious, receiving 96 points out of a possible 100.

Founded in 1981, the Beverage Testing Institute conducts tests in a specially designed lab that minimizes external factors and maximizes panelists' concentration. The Institute selects judges based on their expertise, and its tasting and scoring procedures are widely praised as the best in the industry.

JULY SALE

Bought your pillows & comforters elsewhere? Guaranteed you overpaid!!!

CAVEAT EMPTOR (BUYER BEWARE)

Don't be misled by advertisements for European goose down comforters at supposedly "SALE PRICES". We'll show you that most of those ads do not represent good values at all. Just because these advertisements are from major departments stores - do not be fooled-all down is not alike.

The quality of goose down is measured in fill power (also know as loft). Fill Power is the amount of cubic inches one ounce of down will fill. Our 800 plus Siberian Goose Down will fill between 800 and 850 cubic inches of space. "The Company Store" catalog always lists the fill power of their goose down. Bring in their catalog and we'll generally save you 50% off their prices.

Goose Down Comforters are an investment, with proper care a fine quality comforter will last a life time. Our high quality 100% cotton shells, or tickings, are divided into baffle boxes. The baffle box has a mesh channel separating the top from the bottom of the comforter. The baffle allows the down to give you maximum loft without collecting in one section of the comforter. We do not cater to the consumer that is more interested in price than quality. Our most valuable asset is our customer. We will only sell a product that we believe to be the highest value at the best price. Cheap low quality down should fill garage cans not pillows and comforters. All our goose down pillows and comforters contain 100% goose down even though it is legal to combine 70% down and 30% feathers and label the item 100% goose down. Remember feathers are those things with quills, down is similar to tiny balls of cotton, absolutely no hard quill. Our goose down comforters and pillows are machine washable because they only contain down.

The larger the individual down cluster the higher the fill power. The higher the fill power the better the comforter will insulate thus providing more comfort to you. Since you are spending 1/3 of your life in bed it should be as luxurious as possible. - Why not?

It All Happened In Montauk

Teddy Roosevelt, Richard Nixon, George Washington, Nazi Spies And The Rolling Stones

By Dan Rattiner

More events of historical importance have taken place in the town of Montauk, New York than in any other town of its size in America. I have been writing items of its history over the years. In 1980 I wrote about the slave ship that made landfall at Montauk back in 1839. It involved kidnapping, rebellion, murder, both the sitting president of the United States and a former president and a brave African slave captive named Cinque. The event was a contributing cause to the Civil War.

Director Steven Spielberg of East Hampton recently made a movie about the event. The film was called Amistad and it's possible he read about this remarkable piece of history by reading one of our back issues because I published it before he moved out here.

What I think now, however, is that there ought to be a major motion picture about the history of Montauk. I implore Mr. Spielberg to consider it. It should be called The Point. Here's the rough screenplay; you just have to flesh it out a little bit.

In 1644 Lion Gardiner, one of the first Englishman to set foot in what was later New York State had a meeting with the chief of all the Native Americans on Long Island. His name was Wyandanch and though there were more than a dozen tribes on the Island, the tribe he was chief of, the Montauketts, ruled. The deed to Montauk, signed by Wyandanch with an X, is on display at the East Hampton Library. Wyandanch surely had no idea what his X meant. He could not read or speak English and like all the Indians in North America, had only a vague idea what it meant to buy and sell property.

Wyandanch "sold" Montauk for a bunch of beads and some heavy coats and he later sold it to several dozen other people who, when they found one another, formed a group called The Proprietors of Montauk. It wasn't until more than two hundred years later that the Proprietors were able to agree amongst themselves - mostly in a courtroom - to have the peninsula sold to one individual, a New York City millionaire named Arthur Benson.

Anyway, Gardiner built a home for his wife, children and farm workers on an unpopulated island north of Montauk, which he called, not surprisingly, Gardiners Island. Wyandanch was duly impressed with Gardiner, particularly with the gunpowder that strung on a string.

When Gardiner arrived, Wyandanch appealed to him for help. Gardiner put up the ransom, an act that resulted in Wyandanch deeding the area that is now Smithtown to Gardiner.

Gardiner also contacted the authorities in Rhode Island who subsequently went out with rifles and murdered most of the Naragansetts. After that, the Montauks had a close and friendly relationship with Gardiner and some of the other Englishmen who had arrived, the result of which was that that the Montauketts, whose immune systems were unfamiliar with the diseases carried by the white men, got sick and died of yellow fever, smallpox, mumps and measles. Only a few members of the tribe survived and those that did were forcibly relocated by millionaire Arthur Benson when he bought Montauk from the Proprietors in 1845. Descendents of the Montauketts are sparsely scattered throughout the East End today; a large group of them went to live in Wisconsin.

In 1699, the Pirate Captain Kidd came ashore on Gardiners Island. He may also have come ashore at Montauk. He persuaded John Gardiner, who was the descendent of Lion Gardiner, to give him and his crew food, drink and lodging for a few days. Kidd buried treasure on the beach at Gardiner's Island, showed John Gardiner where that treasure was and told him that he would be back for it and if John Gardiner failed to guard it effectively then John would have his head separated from his body with a swipe of a long sword.

Gardiner waited three years. And what he didn't exploded from the end of his rifle.

One sunny day Wyandanch held a wedding at which his daughter would marry a local brave at Montauk, in the area near Fort Hill and the present Montauk Manor.

The wedding party was raided by a group of Narragansetts from Rhode Island, who came across the Sound in canoes. They murdered the groom, kidnapped the bride and held her for ransom, which for them meant wampum, a whole lot of clam shells

For the last four months, John Adam Kanis, President of the North Fork Bank Corp., has been attempting a hostile two billion dollar takeover of the Dime Corporation. Last week at the urging of North Fork, Dime stockholder refused to endorse the majority of the Dime board members running for re-election, which was a tremendous victory for North Fork. But, the Dime still has wiggle room. They claim the actual counting of the ballots won't be official until the end of the month. Litigation is sure to follow in Delaware Chancery Court.

The Long Island Rail Road is making major track improvements. Most branches will be affected.

Through Sunday, August 13

The extensive track rehabilitation program begun in 1997 continues on the Main Line west of Jamaica Station. Service is being affected as follows:

■ Hunterspoint Ave. Service

- ◆ Most Hunterspoint Ave. trains are being diverted to/from Long Island City.
- ◆ At Long Island City, you may transfer to/from the 7 subway at the Vernon-Jackson Station, two blocks north.
- ◆ You may also transfer to the New York Waterway ferry service at Long Island City.

■ Main Line Service

- ◆ Six AM and three PM trains are being cancelled or combined on the Babylon, Far Rockaway, Hempstead, and Long Beach branches.
- ◆ Other trains are adding stops.
- ◆ Service remains the same to Kew Gardens, Forest Hills, and Woodside. However, departure times may change slightly. There is also one less AM peak train stopping at Woodside.

- ◆ During the week of August 7-11, there will be temporary platforms at Kew Gardens, Forest Hills, and Woodside.

- ◆ If you work in lower Manhattan, you can travel to the Flatbush Ave. Terminal and transfer there for Manhattan-bound subways.

■ Information Services

- ◆ Timetables dated July 15 include all Main Line changes.
- ◆ We urge all customers to pick up special timetables, brochures, or flyers outlining travel alternatives. Also, listen for Public Address announcements for more up-to-date information.

For more information, call the LIRR at 718-217-LIRR (NYC), 516-822-LIRR (Nassau), or 631-231-LIRR (Suffolk).

GREAT UNSUNG HEROES OF BORDEAUX

CARSIN 1998 (Premieres Cotes de Bordeaux) 10.95 131.40
Juha Beglund purchased this somewhat forgotten vineyard in 1990. Refurbishing the winery and vines soon became his passion and today his efforts are well reflected in the high quality wine of this wine. Full flavored with rich, ripe fruit. (4876)

BRIAND 1996 (Bordeaux Superieur) 8.95 107.40
Soft and delicately fruity with ripe cassis fruit and generous flavors. Fertile clay-limestone and sandy soil yield a wonderful wine here. (4813)

GARDUT 1998 (Premieres Cotes de Blaye) 9.49 113.88
One of the oldest properties of the region, Chateau Gardut has been in the Revaire family for 4 generations. Made from 75% Merlot, this 1998 is smooth and supple with a soft, ripe berry character, cocoa nuances and supple tannins. (4811)

JOUANIN 1996 (Cotes de Castillon) 9.95 119.40
Located along the right bank of the Dordogne River, the Cotes de Castillon produces a pleasing wine that offers immediate charm due to its high proportion of Merlot. (4801)

MAISON-NEUVE 1996 (Montagne-St.-Emilion) 10.95 131.40

A superb combination of 60% Merlot, 30% Cabernet-Sauvignon and 10% Cabernet Franc, this 1996 combines uncommon backbone with a framboise scented, richly textured and agreeable style. (4805)

PEYRAUD 1996 (Premieres Cotes de Blaye) 8.95 107.40
Powerful and full, the wines from this small estate offer great value in Bordeaux excellence and have become one of our most popular Bordeaux. (4807)

ROC DE GRIMON 1996 (Cotes Castillon) 8.95 107.40
From one of Bordeaux's oldest winemaking regions, this vineyard sits on lush, fertile soil and produces supple, deliciously fruity wines. (4800)

ROLAND LA GARDE 1998 (Premieres Cotes de Blaye) 9.49 113.88
This is a warm, fruit laden wine that displays dense, concentrated flavors which is quite uncommon for the region and a direct result of late harvesting. Healthy, balanced tannins ensure long aging in the bottle. (4815)

ROUSTAING 1998 (Bordeaux) 8.95 107.40
This is a very old estate and still has a priory wall and window from the Middle Ages that is incorporated into the cellar. Very claret-like in style with a predominance of red berry fruit aromas and flavors, this 1998 is ripe and full bodied with a superb balance. (4803)

THEBOT 1996 (Bordeaux) 8.49 101.88
A delightful full-bodied red with vibrant fruit and a touch of spice. (4812)

DE VERDUN 1998 (Medoc) 10.49 125.88
This blend of Cabernet Sauvignon and Merlot displays plenty of sweet strawberry fruit with a ripe texture and mouthfilling flavors. Delicious now, it will continue to thrive for many years. (4817)

VIEUX CHATEAU LONDON 1996 (Medoc) 14.95 179.40
A large proportion of Cabernet Sauvignon gives a classic structure to this wine. Aged in oak for a full year, it displays good body, intense cassis fruit and great harmony. (4814)

To the patients of Dr. Stuart Levine,

I would like to take this opportunity to tell all of you that I am no longer practicing dermatology with my prior employers.

It was my pleasure to have met each and everyone of you and I sincerely appreciate your confidence in allowing me to care for you. You have a most wonderful community, one that I was grateful to be a part of. You have influenced my life by allowing me these opportunities, and I hope that I have done the same for you in a positive way.

I hope the future brings all of you health and happiness, and I hope that our paths may cross again in the future.

With much care,

know was that Captain Kidd, after stopping at Gardiner's Island, had gone up to Boston to meet with the authorities who were looking for him to try to cut a deal in exchange for his treasure. The effort failed and Kidd was arrested, sent to London and hanged. Two years later, John Gardiner, correctly believing the coast was clear, told the Boston authorities to come down to his island and pick up the treasure, which was diamonds, rubies, necklaces, gold and silver. Stolen goods weren't his thing. He had these treasure boxes on his property. He was turning them in.

In 1952, at the coronation of Elizabeth II, Robert David Lion Gardiner who is the direct descendent of Lion Gardiner, danced with the new Queen and told her he had a receipt from the governor when they had dug up Kidd's treasure. They had given this receipt to John Gardiner.

"Wouldn't it be interesting," the 20th century Gardiner said, "to compare that receipt with the one given out by the Crown in London after the treasure was transported to England?"

"It would indeed," the Queen said.

When Gardiner returned home he sent a copy of the receipt to the Queen. When they were compared they didn't match. There had been light fingered people in between.

Throughout the early 1700s Montauk was used as a summer pasture land by the townspeople of nearby East Hampton who had a rental arrangement with the Proprietors of Montauk. Three homes were built spaced about six miles apart down the peninsula, east to west, so the cattlemen would have a place to stay when they came out to Montauk to mend the fences and tend the cattle, sheep and goats. These houses were called, appropriately, First House, Second House, Third House. Second and Third House still stand; First House burned down about 1910. The foundations can be seen across from the Hither Hills Tent Camp.

There is no record of George Washington having visited Montauk. But in 1795, during his second term as president, at the urging of Congress, he proposed that a lighthouse be built at Montauk so mariners approaching land in the New World could be guided by a light. Congress passed a bill. Washington signed it.

The lighthouse was designed and built that year. It was constructed by John McComb, Jr, who was the lowest bidder for the project at $22,300. The lighthouse was completed in 1797. It is the oldest lighthouse in America. Twenty-five years later, in spite of the light, a British man-o-war, the Culloden, got caught in a storm and dismantled and shipwrecked about ten miles from the lighthouse. All hands perished.

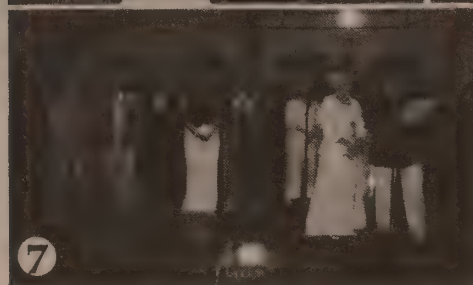

This wreck had occurred in wartime. The new nation had declared war on England in 1812. Young American sailors, in spite of their citizenship, were being captured on the high seas by the British and were essentially kidnapped and forced into the service of the British Navy. The American government declared war. Then they enlisted the aid of the French, who sent a fleet of ships to blockade the British in Long Island Sound between New London and New York City. The Culloden had been one of three ships that the British sent out to meet the French to engage them in battle. A storm had come up. The captains of all the ships ordered them to retire before a shot was fired, but the Culloden, though following orders, took the brunt of the storm, was dismantled and became shipwrecked. It is there, in the sand, underwater today, on Montauk's northside. Occasionally masts, decking or cannons get washed ashore. The entire area is protected as an underwater national monument.

In Cuba in 1839, the twenty or so African slaves aboard the Amistad rebelled against their Cuban captors, took over the ship and ordered it sailed back to Sierra Leone in Africa. The Cubans sailed toward the rising sun by day, the direction the Africans told them; but by night, they turned north and in this manner came zig zagging on a north-easterly course up the Atlantic toward Montauk. Almost a month later, with torn sails, almost no food and water, and a wreck of a ship that many said looked like the Flying Dutchman, they saw land at Montauk. In short order, an American naval vessel patrolling the coast towed them to New London, Connecticut.

At the time, the country had a weak-willed president who was anxious to avoid conflict with Spain at all costs. When he heard that the Spaniards and Africans were in New London he ordered the Africans arrested and charged with piracy and kidnapping. The trial was held in Hartford, the capital of Connecticut. It was an international incident. The Africans were acquitted, the Spanish appealed and the U.S. Supreme Court, the following year, after hearing arguments defending the Africans by former president John Quincy Adams, upheld the acquittal. The Africans were returned to Sierra Leone.

In 1886, the president of the Pennsylvania Rail Road bought the Long Island Rail Road in a seemingly innocent transaction. But Austin Corbin, had big plans. Thirty miles beyond the farthest eastward reaches of the rail road at the time, which was in Bridgehampton, Corbin noticed that there was a deep water port on the north side of Montauk where trans-Atlantic freighters and passenger ships could come in and out.

Corbin quietly extended the Long Island Rail Road tracks to Fort Pond Bay in Montauk, an apparently foolish thing to do since there was no one living out that way. Then he petitioned the City of New York to give him a license allowing freight being brought from Montauk to continue on directly along the Pennsylvania Rail Road tracks along to Philadelphia, and then to points throughout the United States. This would entirely bypass the Port of New York. On the other hand, it made perfect economic sense. At the time, what we now call the Narrows, separating Brooklyn from Staten Island, was poorly dredged and only passable by boat at high tide, twice a day. In between, all freight had to drop anchor on the far side of the Narrows. As if this wasn't enough of a delay, Corbin knew that he could transport freight from Montauk into Manhattan on trains travelling more than a mile a minute. Ships were slow. It would save an enormous amount of time for a European exporter to land his goods at a port in Montauk and then have it shipped from there.

Needless to say, the Mayor of New York was horrified at the thought of losing all this business to Montauk and refused to grant a permit. Corbin retaliated by building what is now known as Pennsylvania Station in Manhattan, where, on private property under his own roof, he could uncouple freight cars from the Long Island Rail Road locomotives and couple them with the Pennsylvania Rail Road locomotives.

Had Corbin succeeded, Montauk would have become a port city, a rival in size to New York. But in 1890, Corbin was thrown from a horse drawn carriage and killed and his successor as president of the railway had no interest in pursuing such grand plans.

In the summer of 1898, the United States Army, fresh from defeating the Spaniards in Cuba, were taken by troop ships to Montauk for "military maneuvers." The U.S. Army, all of 36,000 men, began to land at Montauk on August 26 that year, the first ship bringing in Theodore Roosevelt and his Rough Riders. The purpose of bringing the Army to Montauk after the war instead of sending them directly home was to avoid an epidemic of tropical diseases. There were no "military maneuvers." The troops had been exposed to dysentery and malaria and many were sick. They stayed on Montauk for a month, receiving very little care and either recovered or died. This was long before the discovery of penicillin.

There are photographs of President McKinley visiting the army in Montauk in 1898. He wanted to thank his troops and also to be seen with them for what would be his reelection campaign in 1900. In the campaign of 1900, McKinley chose Teddy Roosevelt as his running mate. When McKinley was assassinated within the year, Teddy Roosevelt became president, serving out that term, then one of his own.

In 1918, toward the end of the first world war, an army base for America's first aircraft was established in what is now downtown Montauk. There were both biplanes and dirigibles housed in a massive steel hangar on Fort Pond. They included, among other things, the dirigible XL-11, one of this country's largest lighter than air aircraft.

When the war ended, a group of pilots decided to try to fly the XL-11 across the Atlantic to London. No one had flown across the Atlantic before and if they could have succeeded they would have won a $100,000 prize. Their efforts foundered in Newfoundland, however, when the dirigible came apart in a storm. All the men lived to tell the tale.

In 1926, Carl Fisher, a multimillionaire who built the Indianapolis Speedway – he was the holder of the land speed record for the measured mile in his youth and had built Miami Beach – bought Montauk from end to end. He tore up the airfield and in its place built Montauk's downtown which included several churches, a post office, a liquor store, general store and a seven story high skyscraper. He planned to build a small city in Montauk. For that purpose he took some of his rich friends, people with last names such as Champion, Firestone, Oldsmobile and so forth up to the penthouse of his seven story building to show them real estate he had for sale in the surrounding area.

Fisher built a racetrack, a beach club with

The Perfect Something

Brown Tide, Gypsy Moths, Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever And A Hurricane

By Dan Rattiner

I saw the movie The Perfect Storm the other evening. I'd had a long day, very little sleep the night before, and since we went to the late show at ten o'clock, I hoped I could stay awake all the way through it.

The beginning of the movie, which takes place along the docks in Gloucester, Massachusetts, is kind of sappy and filled with clichés. There's the boy who can't see his father, the boat captain who's in love with his female counterpart, the old man in the bar who spouts philosophy, and the old woman who runs the place and sort of puts up with everybody. But I got through that and then George Clooney was in his boat and heading out to sea again to catch more fish since he hadn't caught very many the first time around.

Now there was a cut to a TV newsroom in a Boston television station, where the weatherman is looking at the weather map on his computer with wide-eyed amazement. He calls over to an assistant.

"Look at this," he says. "This big hurricane is coming up along the Atlantic, there's this cold front coming down from Canada and this nasty Northeaster coming in from the Atlantic."

And at that moment I fell asleep.

When I woke up, the scene had changed. The movie scene was now the main office of the Group for the South Fork, here in Bridgehampton. And looking at a computer screen were Bob DeLuca, Kevin McDonald and Kim Darrow. Standing behind them were several people holding faxes.

"Not only is that hurricane coming up a problem," DeLuca said, "but that brown tide algae

SAG HARBOR FLINGS DOWN THE GAUNTLET OF REBELLION

By Dan Rattiner

In August of 1775, fed up with the taxes that the King of England was imposing on them, a group of colonists arrayed themselves at the top of Bunker Hill, and as the British redcoats charged up, fired their weapons. The first shot, it was said, was the shot heard round the world, the beginning of the American Revolution.

In early July of 2000, a group of Sag Harbor residents who comprise the Village Board there, sick and tired of wrangling with the State of New York about whether or not they had to build a roundabout, voted unanimously to defy the state and reject the proposal.

The roundabout had been one of fourteen traffic improvements for the village advanced by the State. They would make a significant difference. And the State had already issued an ultimatum. Take all fourteen and get $4.6 million to build the project — more than the entire Village annual budget — or reject any one of them and get nothing. The board, reversing themselves after a decision they made in May, turned the project down.

That this project should be of the same cosmic importance as Bunker Hill, is, I think, in keeping with the level of responsibility that this little Village Board has assumed for itself.

Over the years, the Sag Harbor Village Board, alone among all the East End village and town governments, has consistently thrust itself onto the stage of international events. For example, when the Premier of the Soviet Union, Mikhail Gorbachev, met with our President in Iceland a decade ago and offered all sorts of concessions, the Sag Harbor Village Board voted unanimously to write a letter of commendation to Mr. Gorbachev, letting him know that what he was doing was certainly all right with them.

Since that time, Sag Harbor has written numerous other letters complimenting international officials. Although they have never had any sort of response, I am convinced that they believe their letters are read and appreciated. It is just that the Prime Minister of Israel or the President of Greece is too busy to offer his thanks.

In this context, it is interesting to note the sequence of events that led to this historic vote infestation is headed this way. You can see it on the left, moving from Moriches Bay into Shinnecock. Also, look at this. You see where the greenery is, turned brown? It's the gypsy moths coming down from Connecticut.

"And look over here," McDonald says. "There's Dutch Elm disease coming up from the South-east."

"My God," DeLuca says. "If all these meet together at the same time...."

"I've never seen anything like it. This is an environmentalist's dream."

"Wait a minute," Steve Biasetti said, waving a fax. "We just heard from New London. Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever is coming down from the

"That's bad," Mike Bottini said.

"There's also a Golden Nematode potato bug scourge coming in with the harvest from the west," said Hillary French. "And at the same time we're seeing more of the West Nile mosquitoes from the same area."

"This is terrible," DeLuca says.

A young intern speaks up. "What about all that crab grass spreading so rapidly? And have you noticed how many beaches have been closed off because of piping plovers?"

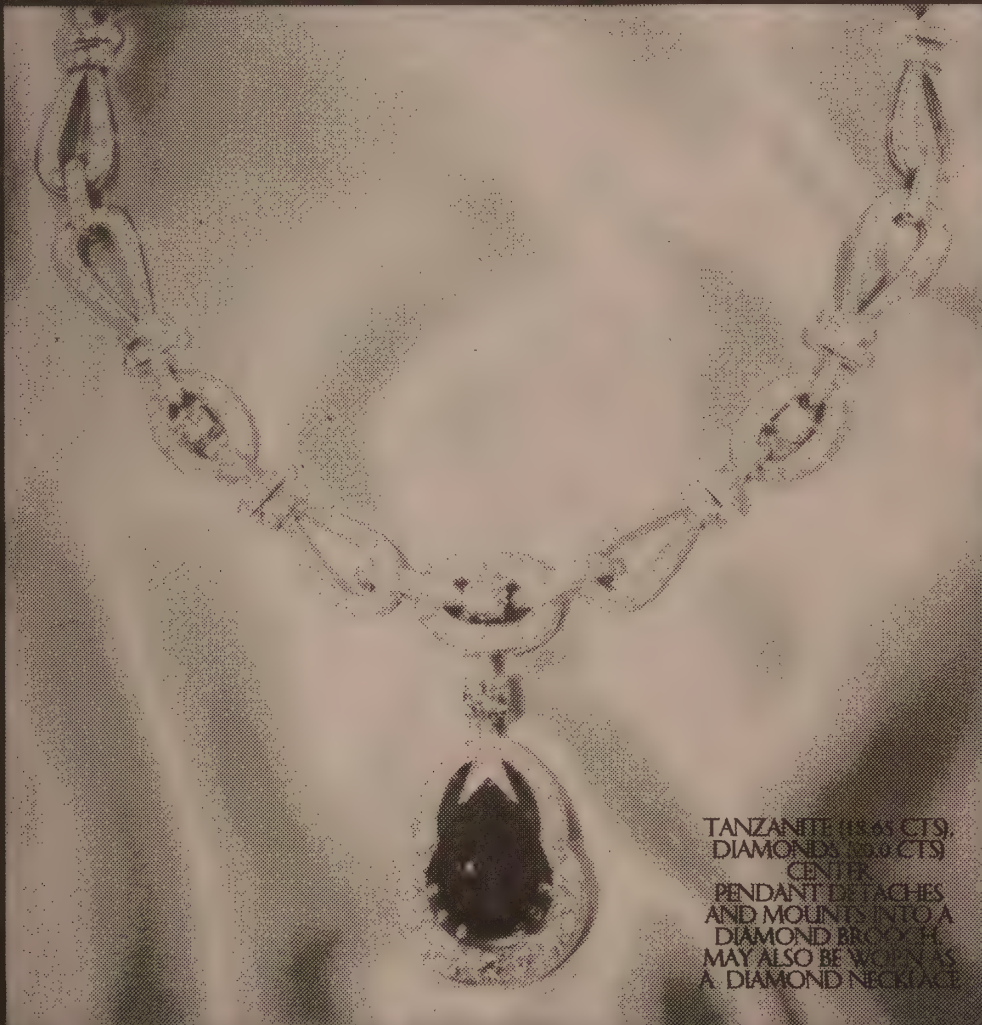

I closed my eyes again just for a minute and once again we were back in the newsroom up in Boston.

"This is a meteorologist dream," the man standing at the computer screen was saying to his assistant. "Something like this comes along once every hundred years."

The rest of the movie I guess you know. George Clooney and his crew fight gallantly against the 100 foot waves. There're helicopters and Coast Guard boats and towards the end George Clooney orders the entire catch of fish, maybe 80,000 swordfish and sailfish, marlin and stripers to be thrown overboard and then everybody dies anyway.

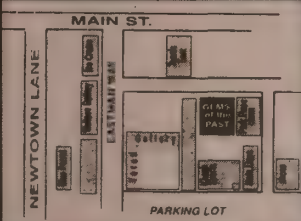

I enjoyed the movie and I would recommend it highly. There are especially good scenes where they have the little model boat bouncing around. •

KMart Shopper

Instructions From The General On Where To Find What You Need. Exactly

By Dan Rattiner

Armed with nothing but my credit card, I arrived at the Bridgehampton Kmart at 7:18 in the evening, just under three hours before closing. My mission? Buy a decorative Victorian table lamp for $14.99. It was on sale.

"This is an incredible price," Cathie had said that morning. "Look. I bought one. We could use two. You're heading up that way. Please get another one."

She handed me the empty lamp box.

KMart was particularly quiet at that hour. There were a few shoppers around, and there were just two women with red aprons and name tags operating checkout counters. The other ten checkout counters were closed.

I wandered around in this huge store aimlessly for awhile, and I could not for the life of me find any lamp section. There was a HOUSEWARES section. And there was a FURNISHINGS section. Neither had lamps.

There also were no clerks anywhere in the store, which I thought was unusual. Here was a few billion dollars worth of merchandise. And there were just these two ladies at the checkout. The shoppers could do what they will. That is quite a responsibility, I thought.

At that moment, a stockroom door opened and a man in a red apron came out. I hailed him and he came over.

"You should have been a spy."
If spies were paid to shop,
I would have been one."

"Where can I find lamps?" I asked.

"Two aisles down and one over," he said, pointing. Then he was off toward the front of the store.

I followed his instructions and there they were, a depleted, pathetic display of lampshades and florescent lamps. Across from this were some ceiling fans with lights in the center. None were a Victorian Table Lamp With Weighted Base. And the man was gone.

They must be all out, is what I thought. And so now I wandered from the back of the store, all the way up toward the front of the store – it must have been half a mile – with nothing to show for it but the empty lamp box I had brought in. I looked this way and that and there were books and toys and bed sheets and pillows and all sorts of things that were very cheap it seemed to me, and I thought I really should not leave empty handed and there I was, passing an entire wall full of toilet paper. We can always use toilet paper.

I think I spent ten full minutes with the toilet paper. There were packs of four and packs of twelve. There was a pack of twenty but each roll had only 375 sheets while one pack of four had rolls with 1000 sheets. Scott, I think.

You don't want to be changing rolls all the time. That's a pain. But then I found a six roll pack with 650 sheets to a roll and I looked at the price and tried to do the division and multiplication to see how it compared, per sheet. Then there was the matter of one ply or two ply. It was very complicated.

This is ridiculous, I finally thought. And so I grabbed one that seemed to look like a reasonable bargain — it was four rolls for $2.85, how could you go wrong for just $2.85? — and I headed for the checkout ladies.

I set the toilet paper down and then, as I reached for my wallet, set the lamp box down as well.

"This is empty," I said. "I brought it in. I'm supposed to buy one like it but I couldn't find it."

"I've never seen a lamp like that before," EMILENE said, looking at the picture on the side of the box. "Carlita, could you look at this?"

Since there was nobody at the other checkout,

CARLITA strolled over.

"I don't think we carry Stratford lamps in the store," she said. "I've worked here six months. I've never seen Stratford."

"That's okay," I said.

"Are you sure it was KMart?" Carlita asked.

"As a matter of fact, no I'm not," I said. "Maybe it was TJ Maxx." I gestured to the other end of the mall.

Now I opened my wallet, took out a five dollar bill and handed it to Emilene. She rang it up, put the toilet paper in a bag and handed me my change.

At that moment, my cel phone rang. I fished it out of my pocket and put it up to my ear.

"Hi," Cathie said. "Where are you?"

"I'm at KMart."

"Did you get the lamp?"

"No. They didn't have it. I went to the lamp department."

"Where was that?"

"Oh, I don't know."

"Where are you now, exactly?"

"In KMart. I told you."

"Where exactly in KMart?"

"At the checkout. They said they don't handle Stratford lamps. I bought some toilet paper."

"Which way are you facing?"

"I just paid for the toilet paper. I'm facing the front of the store. I have it in a plastic bag and I'm going to go out to the car. I also have the empty box you gave me."

"Turn around," Cathie said, "you're going back in."

"I am?"

"Which checkout counter are you at?"

"What do you mean?"

"Which checkout counter? There are twelve of them."

"It's about in the middle. There's only one other one open."

"Look back into the store past that checkout counter. Do you see a display of towels?"

"Yes."

"And across from it is the jewelry counter?"

"Yes."

"Okay, walk so the jewelry counter is on your left and the towels are on your right. Are you there?"

"I'm there."

"Okay, walk down the aisle toward the back. On your left you should see a new L'Oreal display with a picture of that actress who just starred in the Joan of Arc movie..."

"Got it."

"Cross over the center aisle that runs horizontally in front of you. The next aisle will be candles on your right and women's accessories on your left. Walk down that aisle."

"What's an accessory? Oh. Bags. I get it."

"At the end of the candle aisle, make a right, then your second left."

"I don't believe I'm doing this," I said. "There are picture frames on my left."

"Keep going. It's the next aisle. Make a left at that second aisle. Now you should be in the put together your own lamp aisle. Walk up that aisle, make a right and a right. That's the packaged lamp aisle."

"I don't see any...oh my god, there they are."

"You've got one?"

"Yes."

"Good."

"You should have been a spy."

"If spies were paid to shop, I would have been one."

"I guess so."

We said our goodbyes and I hung up the phone.

The lamp was heavy in its box. It was hard to believe that this lamp, with a bronze base and a die cast frosted ring glass shade, could cost only $14.95. But there it was.

Now armed with my toilet paper, my empty box and my lamp, I returned the three quarter of a mile to check out and waited in what was now a small line.

The East End's First Professional Tennis Team, The New York "Hamptons," Wins First Game

By Ben Amato

World Team Tennis came to the East End, with the New York Hamptons winning their first match last week. Exciting professional tennis was played, complete with smashes, aces and net play too fast to follow. But the style of competition the W.T.T. has been providing for twenty years is more than a showcase for the talents of Jim Courier, Mary Jo Fernandez, Venus and Serena Williams, Pat McEnroe, and a stable of top tennis stars. The actual "atmosphere" created at one of their matches is one of friendliness, closeness and a type of "team" spirit where the audience was taking things personally. When Mary Jo Fernandez of the Delaware Smash drilled a ball into Monique Viele, the fifteen year old sensation of the Hamptons, the crowd got angry. And moments later when Monique zinged one passed Mary Jo to win the game, the cheering was contagious.

Two fans out of the 800 or so who enjoyed a night of professional "backyard" tennis were Vincent and Ruth Urwand. After years of attending the Hamlet Cup, they now favor the Hamptons. "This is the closest to the players I've ever been," said Ruth, a tennis player for the last ten years. She was dazzled just hanging by the back fences before the match, watching the pros warm up. "The power..." and then she let out a wishful sigh.

"We offer entertaining, fun team tennis, where the fans get involved in the competition," said Hampton's General Manager Wendy Parr. When Delaware Smash player Geoff Grant made a sparkling shot and was applauded by the lone Delaware fan in the crowd, Geoff not only said "Thank you," but added, "I like the blue shirt...good applause.

The next three hours flew by as fast as some of the serves. Each of the five matches featured amazing tennis, with some of the lesser known players grabbing the limelight from the two marquee stars, Jim Courier and Mary Jo Fernandez.

The power of Hampton's player Jonathan Stark startled the crowd, including the cameraman who was nailed with a smash. During the Jim Courier — Mike Sell match, it wasn't the speed, accuracy and terrifying spins that Jim put on his shots that captured the crowd's attention. The tenacity evidenced by Sell, scurrying after each near deadly shot, drew the admiration of the crowd. And when Erika de Lone was on the verge of burying Mary Jo Fernandez under a barrage of slices, deep baseline shots and strong first serves, the fans were roaring. And then confused.

Delaware Coach Brad Dancer pulled out the rule book and Mary Jo, substituting teammate Mariaan de Swardt into this women's single match. In a matter of minutes, Erika's 4-1 lead disappeared, de Swardt overpowering her to the point of driving her into the windscreens, 5-4, smash win. The crowd was angry.

Pat McEnroe's wife Melissa began the evening with an incredible rendition of the "Star Spangled Banner." It was obvious she was chosen to sing, not because her husband owned the team, but because her voice was so clear, solid and beautiful. Instead of the New York tradition of cheering during the last verse of the anthem, the crowd was dazed into silence and then moved to loud

The finale of men's doubles followed and then things really got intense. The shots became faster, lower and more powerful. Turf battles at the net became dueling matches, with the balls ricocheting pinball-like between the four combatants. Courier's rocket serves had both Delaware players back beyond the baseline. Delaware players Geoff Grant and Sell fought back, returning everything, running down shots that the crowd thought were winners. Jonathan Stark was solid, dependable and fully involved in the battle. Set Hamptons. The night ended with another unique feature of World TeamTennis competition. Even though the Hamptons were behind on points, since they won the final set, the rules featured an overtime match. This was one last shot to use momentum to stage a comeback. The crowd roared when Courier and Stark continued to blast away, winning three straight games to even things up and then cleaning up in the seven point tie-breaker. The New York Hamptons took their first league match.

The team stampeded on to the court, hugging like the Yankees do each October. The crowd filed out happy, content, satisfied but emotionally drained. Wendy Parr, the General Manager who put this night together could rest easy. She and her staff had avoided the "Murphy's Law of Business." Nothing went wrong. After weeks of "all consuming" planning, according to Wendy, "...it's anticlimactic." The night was over. She put some of the finest in tennis talent "on the center stage and they made it happen."

The New York Hamptons still have four more home dates before the July 30th end to their season. You can catch their intimate team tennis battles at Sportime in the Hamptons, located in Quogue. "WHY WOULD SOMEONE WHO HAS ANOTHER ALARM COMPANY, CALL SCAN SECURITY?"

All security companies are not equal. For instance if you call our competitors, they have a machine answering your emergency call. Scan's phones are answered 24 hours a day by a person who can immediately and effectively respond to a break-in, fire or freezing pipes. Another reason Scan is better is that unlike our competition, who have one car on patrol, we have five. So when choosing a security company, don't settle for less. Call Scan Security at 537-7600 and speak to a person, not a machine.

Hillary Here (Again)

Adoring Crowds Of Well Wishers Follow Her Through East Hampton

By Chris Stanley

Hillary Clinton swept through the Hamptons last Friday, battling heavy weekend traffic to meet with farmers, seniors, and children.

The first lady's initial stop was at the Ivy Acres State Farm where she addressed agricultural issues with a group of approximately 100 farmers.

Lunch with seniors at the East Hampton Senior Citizen Center took place without Mrs. Clinton, who was two hours late due to the heavy traffic. An audience of over eighty five enthusiastic seniors awaited her arrival singing cheerfully in little groups and generally hanging out and socializing.

Of Hillary Clinton, a senior by the name of Doris Clinton, from East Hampton, said: "I'm voting for her. When the other guy gets in the state is going to go down."

Dorothy Beskind, from East Hampton, also expressed her opinion about Hillary Clinton's candidacy. "I'm very happy at the prospect of her being the Senator. I'm going to vote for her and I think she's an outstanding woman, highly educated. I don't think we've had many President's wives who are up to that, and I'm very proud of her as a woman."

Arlene Mannes, from Amagansett, added, "I'm undecided. I know that she's a very intelligent woman, and she does a lot, but I'm still thinking of Lazio, who is running against her for the State Senate. I respect her as a woman—especially after all she's gone through. Last year I saw Bill Clinton when he was playing golf across from my home and I shook hands with him, so I thought today I would see Mrs. Clinton and see what she has to say."

Jeannette Malloy from East Hampton said: "I hope she wins. I'm so happy it's a woman running for Senator. It's about time. I think more women should be politically involved and I'm really looking forward to her winning the Senate."

From the male point of view Gordon Hawthorne to the issues she had come to address with the seniors. No flag-wrappings for her—no empty slogans—only an apology for her lateness and a clear, strong stand on the issues facing her audience.

"One of the reasons I'm here is because I feel so strongly about the issues affecting older people," Mrs. Clinton said. "My mother is eighty one and I know that there's a lot of concern on people's minds about what happens to Social Security...what happens to Medicare...and whether we get a prescription drug benefit for Medicare—which I support...whether we have control over our own health care—in other words—will our doctors and our nurses get to make the decision—or—as so often happens now—will they be told what they can and can't do by somebody maybe a 1000 miles away?

"And what happens if somebody has to go into a nursing home? Will we be protecting people and providing the kind of services they need?"

"So in all of those issues I just want you to know that I am very much concerned and very committed. I will do everything to protect Social Security, and that means to me that we have to protect the surplus. We have to use it in the right way.

"I will do everything to protect Medicare," she went on. "I believe in a prescription drug benefit voiced his opinion: "I like her. I like her and I'll vote for her. She's smart. She's aggressive, and she looks like she's up for it."

"Oh Yeah! We're for Hillary," Don Campbell chimed in, "She's been very faithful to the Democrats. She's a good person—very intelligent. We're voting for her."

When Mrs. Clinton finally arrived she received a standing ovation and wasted no time getting that is available to everybody. I believe in getting prescription drug costs down because they are way too high for all of us.

"I believe in the patient's bill of rights. It gives us some way of holding the HMOs and the medical insurance companies accountable.

"And I believe in national nursing home standards so that if you or someone you care about has to go into one, you know that you can be taken care of.

"I hear more and more about Alzheimer's and about other diseases that are keeping a lot of pressure on families.

"We need more respite care. We need more health care. We need more research into these diseases. And we also need to give families a tax cut so that they can have more money to take care of the loved ones at home.

"So there are so many issues to talk about: education, health care, the economy—all of that."

Hillary Clinton took ample time making herself available to every senior who wanted to speak with her as she went from table to table to personally become acquainted with the seniors who could not physically get to her.

It was obvious that the golden-aged citizens were thrilled by the personal attention they were getting from the First Lady and were happy to have waited for her, tardy, but personally meaningful arrival.

Mrs. Clinton's next, and final stop of the day was at the East Hampton Day Care Center.

The First Lady has been a committed advocate for day care centers since the time that her husband was the Governor of Arkansas.

Hillary Clinton visited with two different age groups of children, many of whom were immigrants.

She played color preference games with her eager playmates, as well as name games and got the children to talk about their dogs without any self-conscious ceremony.

Hillary then moved on to the pre-school group in another room and was showered with wild flowers by her cheerful four and five year old hosts.

The children shared their large storybooks with her and Mrs. Clinton read a letter out loud that had been written to her by Georgie — a four-year-old immigrant from Romania. The letter told her his personal story and cheerfully announced that four of his siblings would be joining him in November.

The sharing of the letter was followed by the interactive reading of a very large storybook from which the First Lady read out loud while asking questions from her audience. The book was about a hungry caterpillar whose appetite could not be satiated until it finally ate a green leaf. Mrs. Clinton gave the children a final laugh with an improvised joke about MacDonald's.

The East Hampton Day Care Center is one that Mrs. Clinton had visited last year and one she feels is a primary model for the way Day Care Centers should work in the nation.

In a brief interview with Dr. Laura Anker-Grossman, a member of the School Board and the Board of the East Hampton Day Care Center, she said:

"It's a center which has the most support from the community—has the collaboration from the East Hampton school district, so that we can provide pre-kindergarten for the children in a more family oriented setting—and also, it's a very cost-effective way to do it.

"We also have a collaboration and a relationship with senior day care and it enables us to have an inter-generational program so that the children can interact with older people. Many of our children, in fact, are immigrants and many of them don't have grandparents, therefore it's quite wonderful for them to have seniors to interact with."

Four Years

Anniversary Of Flight 800 Marked With Emotion, Petitions And A Press Conference

By Jerry Cimisi

As the fourth anniversary of the tragedy of TWA Flight 800 arrived there were the expected emotional remembrances. Last weekend at Smith's Point Park ground was broken for a permanent memorial to the 230 people who died on the evening of July 17, 1996. On Saturday, July 16, Tom Gallagher of Seaford finished a fifty mile swim, from the waters off JFK to the coast of the Moriches, traversing by sea the path the doomed flight had taken by air.

In a phone interview two weeks ago, Dawn Wesche of Center Moriches, who is among those who have spearheaded the creation of the Smith Point Memorial, spoke about the goal of the Families of Flight TWA 800 Inc. to raise $1.5 million for the memorial.

Ms. Wesche had been drawn into the tragedy four years ago because her husband owns a local funeral home and was involved in the preparation and transportation of the bodies to the Suffolk County's Medical Examiner's office. "He is also a tugboat captain and lifeguard," said Mrs. Wesche. "He was on one of the first boats out there looking for survivors."

Thus far New York State has allocated $100,000 in the state budget to the memorial. On the weekend of the anniversary gathering at Smith's Point, Mayor Rudolph Giuliani sent representatives who gave the project a check for $200,000.

The memorial is a curved slab of black granite carved with the names of the 230 who died on Flight 800. The granite will be centered in a two acre garden.

Amidst such events, as the National Transportation Safety Board readies for its final hearing on the Tragedy of TWA Flight 800 in Washington on August 22 and 23, various parties to the investigation have been submitting their own reports on the matter. In a recent article (June NTSB analysis of events.

In its introduction to the report, IAMAW asserts that its own investigators were at first stymied by the FBI. "We must comment on the Federal Bureau of Investigation... We were judged to be a criminal element, and not worthy of participation in this investigation.... It wasn't until all avenues were exhausted that the FBI requested our help. The threats made during the first weeks of investigation were unwarranted and are unforgivable! [Emphasis added.]"

The introduction concludes: "We felt then and continue to feel that if the investigation had been conducted per established protocol, possibly we could have completed it earlier."

In its section on wiring, the report reads, "The one wire noted as having evidence of arcing remains in dispute. Further inspection of wire bundle 332 on March 14, 2000 revealed no evidence of arcing or chafing. This wire is not mentioned in the field notes... protocol demands that findings are to be witnessed by a majority if not the entire participating group. Therefore we find any mention of reliance on this item should be dismissed."

In regards to the fuel aboard Flight 800, the reports states: "Studies of the fuel actually aboard the aircraft at the time of the accident do not

"It wasn't until all avenues were exhausted that the FBI requested our help. The threats made during the first weeks of investigation were unwarranted and are unforgivable."

16) we detailed the report submitted to the NTSB by Boeing. The aircraft manufacturer had found no evidence of electrical arcing that might have been the ignition source of the center wing fuel tank explosion, which the NTSB has contended as the probable cause of events. Now the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers (IAMAW) has submitted their report on Flight 800 - and it further defies the suggest any abnormal conditions." This prefaces the section titled "Fire and Explosion," which makes some telling statements.

"An explosion did occur within the center fuel tank during the flight of TWA Flight 800. We have not been a party to any evidence, wreckage, or tests that could conclude that the center tank explosion was and is the primary contributor to this accident."

The NTSB has contended that the explosion of the center wing fuel tank was the originating event that brought down the plane; many independent investigators have concluded that the fuel tank exploded as a result of another event, such as a bomb or missile.

The report goes on, referring to an NTSB report, "The Fire and Explosion Group Field Notes on Splatter Deposits...state; 'The temperatures associated with the deposit generation process exceeded the auto-ignition temperature of the fuel in the WCS, possibly by an appreciable margin.' In other words, the temperatures required to produce the splatters of metal investigators found were as a result of a higher temperature than would have been produced by the exploding tank."

In the section "Maintenance Records" states. "Nothing in the maintenance records indicate that any maintenance was performed in an improper manner...we do not believe that a link can be proved as a contributing cause of the accident."

IAMAW questioned the protocol in inspecting and tagging wreckage. In the section "Cabin Interior" the reports states that in the course of the investigation "cabin wreckage began to disappear from the cabin wreckage hangar. Indications were that the disappearance was due to the removal of the wreckage by the FBI. Field notes from the Cabin Documentation Group (CDG) stated this fact."

This — and other sources — confirm the fact and not surprising dissatisfaction by many parties to the investigation that the FBI was harboring evidence and not allowing qualified personnel to inspect it.

The IAMAW goes on: "The Chairman's factuals for the Cabin Documentation Group omitted this information from the group's field notes...the CDG has not received a list of the wreckage items that were taken, the tests that were done, the results of the tests and when and if the wreckage was ever returned. [Emphasis added.]

The NTSB kept a database on the tagged wreckage, but the IAMAW questioned the accuracy of that database: "Inadequate documentation procedures..."

Meetings were "held to resolve the validity of the tag database," but "two meetings held at the Calverton hangar did little to resolve the validity issues. A final meeting October, 1997 at the NTSB offices in Washington "raised a much larger issue...it was revealed that Mr. Paul Harkin, working for the government had entered the Calverton hangar and tagged at least 100 pieces of wreckage. Mr. Harkin did not and has not provided a list of wreckage items that he tagged or any documentation as to why these items should receive the tags he supplied.

"The NTSB has left the validity issue remain unresolved while at the same time using the tag data to support several groups [within the NTSB]... We now have at least two groups drawing conclusions on data that has at least a ten percent chance of being wrong. Adding Mr. Harkin's tagging wreckage without any documentation or records and the conclusions that used the tag data for support become suspect."

The report concludes: "A definite cause cannot be determined at this time." Though the report adds that the explosion of the fuel tank was caused by a "high pressure event" breaching the fuselage.... The explosion was a result of this event!" [Emphasis in the report.]

"It appears to the IAM that a major event may have occurred on the left side of the aircraft."

Although the many investigators who believe that Flight 800 was brought down by a missile will find much to support their conclusions in this report,, in a section titled "Witnesses to the Accident," the report reads, "It is our conclusion that no witness saw the actual explosion nor can any witness state conclusively that an object other than the aircraft was present...."

Graeme Stephon of the Flight 800 Independent Researchers Organization (FIRO) remarked to this reporter that he wondered if the International Association of Machinists had seen the newly released 750 plus eyewitness reports.

FIRO is in the process of filing a Freedom of Information Act suit in U.S. District Court in

By Dan Rattiner

I'm sitting with Michael Lynne having coffee in the Candy Kitchen in Bridgehampton. It is mid-afternoon, not too many people are about and we talk about his two recent purchases of wineries on the North Fork and his life as an entertainment lawyer and more recently as the president of New Line Cinema.

Lynne is a handsome man with reddish brown hair, a quiet voice and a gentle way about him. As he describes his life, it's apparent that he's successfully proceeded in a very clear and methodical way to achieve the things in life that he had hoped to.

Lynne was born in Brooklyn, the son of a New York lawyer, went to Midwood High School, then Brooklyn College where he got a degree in English Literature in 1961 and then his law degree at Columbia in 1964. In college he was very interested in the theatre. He produced a good number of college shows, wrote the lyrics for some other shows and as a hobby, made it his business to see just about every Broadway show and off Broadway show there was.

"I had an apartment on the upper West Side with some other guys," he said. "And I'd go by subway down to Broadway or Off Broadway. Standing room tickets were very cheap back then, maybe fifteen dollars, Off Broadway five or six dollars. I saw all the great Broadway shows of the time."

His first job after law school was with a firm called Colten & Fernbach. This firm's practice largely consisted of theatrical work and they represented Richard Rogers, Hal Prince and George Abbott, major Broadway figures.

"There was no such thing as an entertainment lawyer at the time," he said. "That came later. But as I worked on contract negotiations and learned the language, I came to realize that it would be important also to represent people in film, and on television."

For the next ten years, he found a way to do exactly that. Working for one firm that specialized in film, he did legal work for The Graduate, The Producers and Lion In Winter. And then three years later he joined a firm that did TV law.

And so, in 1971, along with Richard Blumenthal, he set up the firm of Blumenthal & Lynne to practice "entertainment" law. He was to stay in this practice for the next twenty years.

In graduate school he had been told that there was a young woman he should meet and they would get along just fine. They had a blind date. Her name was Nina, a buyer in the fashion industry. They married in April of 1967. They've since raised two children, moving to Middletown, New Jersey for a number of years where they thought the fresh air and suburban life would suit them and their young children, but after only three years, they moved back to Manhattan.

"It turned out we were really New Yorkers. We were in town practically all the time, so we had to move back."

Blumenthal & Lynne is one of the most successful entertainment law firms in the business. However, life took an extraordinary turn for Michael Lynne in 1990.

Who's Here:

Michael Lynne Of New Line Cinema, Bedell and Corey Creek

"One of our clients was Bob Shea, the founder of New Line Cinema. I had gone to law school with him and he had founded the company by paying for the importation rights to Czechoslovakian films and then selling them to colleges around the country. In 1990, Shea was looking for someone to partner with him and manage the business for him and he hired me to conduct the search. Almost a year went by and he said we aren't finding anybody suitable, but there is someone suitable and it's you, you could do this.

"It was a big decision to leave the law firm but in September 1990, I signed on as president and chief operating officer of New Line. There were sixty people there at the time and we were doing about a hundred and fifty million dollars in revenue. Today, there are over 600 people at New Line and we do over a billion."

During Lynne's tenure, New Line produced Nightmare on Elm Street, the Teenage Ninja Turtle movies, Dumb and Dumber, Austin Powers, The Spy Who Shagged Me, Wag the Dog, Shine and The Player along with dozens of others.

I asked him what was coming up in the immediate future.

"In August we'll have a movie called The Sellout starring Jennifer Lopez. Also, Frequency with Dennis Quade and a movie called Thirteen Days about the Cuban missile crisis starring Kevin Costner. We're also filming all three books of the Tolkien Trilogy and it will be out in a year. We're filming in New Zealand."

Lynne and his wife began coming out to the Hamptons in 1981, renting at first in Water Mill and then in Quogue. Their children, Jonathan and Elizabeth were eleven and eight at the time. After a number of years they bought a house in Georgica, East Hampton where they live today.

"We love the beach," Michael said. "And also, I'm a tennis player."

Lynne told me that he'd been a wine enthusiast for a long time. He has a wine cellar in both his home in East Hampton and in New York City. Then several years ago he thought he would enjoy going into the winery business.

"Wine is a little like the film business," he said. "You buy something that has to be a business but it has to have something creative to make it a business, and the fact that the creativity is imponderable is very exciting."

At first Lynne thought that he and his wife would buy a winery in the South of France. But after visiting there they decided it was so far away they wouldn't be able to enjoy it very much. And then a friend told them about the North Fork.

"We took the two ferries across Shelter Island and then drove the whole length of the North Fork from east to west," Lynne said. "It was an eye opening experience. There are twenty-one vineyards. We tried the wines, we talked. It felt like Napa Valley twenty-five years ago. The wineries are simple but appealing, and the wines are quite good."

Lynne decided he'd be in the market to buy a winery on the North Fork.

"But this is very hard to do," he said, "because they're never for sale officially. If people learn there's a winery on the market they ask what's wrong with the wine."

In any case, after a little sleuthing, he bought the Corey Creek Vineyard on thirty acres in Southold. Soon after that, he bought the fifty acre Bedell Cellars Vineyard in Cutchogue about a mile away. He also got Kip Bedell to agree to stay on making wine for the next five years.

"They're a good match," Lynne said. "Corey Creek is one third Merlot and Cabernet and two thirds Chardonnay and Bedell is two thirds Merlot and Cabernet and one third Chardonnay. At the present time Corey Creek doesn't have a winery and their wine is made at the Lenz Vineyard but Bedell does have a winery and perhaps down the road that will work out."

Lynne described the variables in wine making. "It's really quite fascinating," he said. "At the end of the day you're taking fruit – produce – through a very open process to make a particular wine. You can use the very same grapes from the same region and in the hands of a winemaker you can make a different wine from it. There are decisions involving whether to use oak or not, how long to keep it in bottles or barrels, there's how you care for the vineyard, and then the things you can't control such as the weather. Sometimes in bad weather you can make good wine anyway."

And then last month the Wine Spectator came out with its annual North Fork issue and for the first time since the beginning of the North Fork wine industry, one wine received a rating of ninety.

It was called Cupola, which is a Bordeaux blend from Bedell Cellars. In honor of this occasion – achieving a ninety puts North Fork vineyards into the first rank of wine making regions – Kip Bedell's photograph graced the cover of the wine magazine.

"We're about to separate ourselves out and be recognized the same way the Northern California region is," Lynne said. "I predict that sometime soon, someone is going to open an auberge or inn on the North Fork, maybe several, and they'll be a four star restaurant on the North Fork. Someone is going to do this."

Lynne visits the wineries that he's purchased about every other weekend. "This is my private life," he said. "The fun thing I am doing in my free time."

He's very proud of all the wines that are coming from the North Fork. "Besides the ninety we just got, many of the other vineyards are getting scores in the high eighties."

He then related a story about a dinner he'd had at the restaurant Alain Ducasse in Manhattan a week ago. "I opened the wine list," he said. "And I'm looking at some of the best wines in the world and it's a very extensive list. And the first ten wines are the best domestic wines, nine of them are from California, but the very first wine on the list is a 1996 Merlot from Bedell Cellars. It was a good year and a good dinner."

preview: al roker at guild hall

By Joan Zandell

Al Roker is the sort of smiley, happy guy you wish you'd grown up next door to – and if you happened to have grown up in Queens there's an excellent possibility that you did. The oldest of six children, Al Roker grew up in a family "filled with love." Of the six children, three were adopted. But Al swears that all the siblings were treated with an equal amount of love and caring by the two people, his mother and father, who would do anything to help their children become who they were meant to be.

Don't Make Me Stop This Car is Al Roker's first book. The title is taken from a line by his father, a line that was used as a last-ditch effort to frighten the wits out of his kids when they pushed the envelope, getting just a tad too out of control in the back of the car. It's a good line you must admit. How many kids would have the guts to find out what would happen if and when he ever did stop the car? I'm an adult and I don't want to know. Not that Al Roker ever thought that he would be using the exact phrases his father had used. But with parenthood, things appear to change.

First of all you start behaving in unusual ways. Like sneaking into the nursery in the middle of the night to watch your daughter sleep. Suddenly it's better than watching a Knicks game. Then there are all those little things your father used to say to you when you were a kid that you hated having to hear, and never really understood – and suddenly one day there they are flying out of your mouth! Hey! What's going on here? It must be parenthood.

Such episodes come as no great surprise to the best-known and best-loved weatherman in the world. (That title was bestowed upon Mr. Roker by the New York Post.) His daily encounters with visitors from across America on the sidewalks outside Studio 1-A are a highlight of the NBC's Today Show. Among his many on-air duties, Al also conducts celebrity interviews, cooking segments and technology updates. As a feature reporter, Al has developed a continuing series for Today called Today's Dad featuring parenting tips geared for fathers. Al's Big Adventure series has Al bobsledding with the US Olympic Team, rescuing sea lions in the Pacific Ocean and scuba diving with sharks. If you are looking for an up to the minute weather forecast, you can visit Al's website www.roker.com, in addition you can get Al's thoughts on a variety of subjects, laugh at his daily cartoon, write to him and challenge the mind with some brain bursting trivia.

Don't Make Me Stop This Car is a light-hearted romp through fatherhood, and incidentally, getting to fatherhood. Few people could describe the arduous process of artificial insemination with such humor and pathos. A kind and considerate husband, a loving father, and a great on-camera personality! What more could a mother want? Perhaps to hear Al tell his stories in person, that beaming, happy smile making everyone in the room feel gladdened by his warm and engaging spirit. Mother's, father's and children are welcome to hear Al Roker speak about his first book, Don't Make Me Stop This Car, at Guild Hall this coming Sunday afternoon, July 23 at 2 p.m. •

Hillary Clinton will be making the rounds of events again this weekend. She'll be the guest of honor for a luncheon at the home of Michael and Nancy Silberkleit of East Hampton on Sunday.

The Bridgehampton Chamber Music Festival, running August 2 to 20, has an extra added attraction this year: air conditioning. The elegant, old Presbyterian Church on Main Street will be very cool this year, a blessing for musicians and audiences.

During the month of July ten free wildbird garden trees will be given to each person who joins The National Arbor Day Foundation. The trees and shrubs provide cover, nesting sites, and food for more than 100 bird species. The trees will be shipped postpaid just in time for planting between October 15, to December 10, along with a subscription to the Foundation's colorful bimonthly publication, Arbor Day, and The Tree Book. The membership contribution is $10. Call 402-474-5655.

Jewelry designer David Yurman is presenting corporate sponsor of the "Bow Wow Luau" Summer Benefit Party for the Animal Rescue Fund of the Hamptons" to be held this year on August 19, at the Southampton estate of Ellen and Chuck Scarborough. David is also designing a limited edition of David Yurman Cable Dog Jewelry to be auctioned at the Bow Wow Luau. A preview party showcasing the auction items will be held at the Vered Gallery in East Hampton on August 5. The champagne and dessert reception from 9-11 p.m. will be chaired by Mary Ellen Kay of Prudential Securities. All the proceeds from the auction will be donated to ARF. Bidders will be tempted by one-of-a-kind Yurman canine and feline jewelry and accessories from jeweled collars, to dog tags, pins and belt buckles. Go figure.

There is still time to preview and place advance bids on the one-of-a-kind art plates created by 115 renowned artists and celebrities for The Retreat's fifth annual "Artists Against Abuse" auction. The plates are on view Friday, July 21 at Paradise Café/BookHampton in Sag Harbor, 5:30 p.m.-7:30 p.m. Donald Baechler, Will Barnet, Lynda Benglis, Donald Sultan, Sheila Isham, Edward Albee, Alec Baldwin and Nicole Miller are just a few of the artists and celebrities who have contributed hand-painted ceramic plates. A catalog with photographs of each plate, artists' biographies and advance bid forms are available at the previews. The auction takes place on Saturday, July 29 at Channing Daughters Winery in Bridgehampton. For information call 329-4398.

years ago in dan's papers

TEN YEARS AGO "A Thousand Stars" July 13, 1990

The invitation from Harry Acton Streibel arrived in early May for the July 6 "A Night of a Thousand and One Stars" party. It was star-encrusted, the invitation, and you had to read it in a mirror. It was clear from the word "go" that this would be no ordinary party. In fact, it turned out to be the most fantastic event since Truman Capote's "Black and White Ball" a quarter of a century ago.

Harry Streibel is a retired fashion designer, a world class gardener, and a party planner extraordinaire. His grounds had been transformed into a fantasy of twinkle-lights, rainbow-colored bubbles emanating from a pond, and silver and white moire-striped cloth covered tables. A tent designed by sculptor Bill Moss cantilevered out from an enormous spruce tree decorated with huge silver ornaments. Puffs of colored smoke at the entrance cast a magical glow, and searchlights strobed the sky overhead.

The invitation noted that "no one not wearing a costume will be admitted." (Even my reluctant husband donned a borrowed Swahili chief's robe, and allowed me to tie a turban around his head.) Since I had been asked to be a judge, I "made do" with a sort of costume. Same husband commented, "That's just about the costume you get yourself into most Saturday nights." I ignored this slur.

A platoon of police-parkers helped us get settled, and we walked back to the rainbow-lit driveway. A "Cabaret" Joel Grey dressed M.C. welcomed us, and our host, in ringmaster garb, led us to his huge deck, which was to serve as a stage. A ninety five year old queenly looking woman was seated on a throne-like chair, left of center, as chief watcher of the proceedings. Sultans and priests and Mandarins and glamorous women milled about. It was a perfect night, cool and starry. Jim Revson, of Newsday the other judge, was dashing in a smart red military coat, with medals, and a carefully painted bloody wound dripping down his face, obviously the after-effect of a duel.

Video cameras whirled, and flash cameras popped as a series of tableaux were introduced. There were the Daddy Warbucks and Annie entourage, and an entire Wizard of Oz group. Ted Dragon led a feather-bedecked elegantly clad crew that somehow reminded me of Mummerys Parades from my Philadelphia childhood. Then the sweet strains of Madame Butterfly came over the loud-speaker, and what seemed like the entire cast of the opera walked in, the women kimono-clad and perfectly wigged and made-up, the Col. Pinkerton officers looking appropriately grave. A "Let Me Entertain You" sequence followed, with a sequin-encrusted mermaid lip-synching the lyrics, while a few in the audience importuned "her" to "take

The Sheltered Islander By Sally Flynn

OBSERVATIONS OF AN ISLANDER #115 CLAM THIRTY

We bought my brother David a tide clock for his birthday and we haven't been clamless since. He rakes up a peck of clams every weekend and distributes them between Mother and I.

For those of you who don't know, a peck is a fourth of a bushel, roughly 125 clams. If you tread or rake for clams, leave the babies (an inch or less) and leave the big ones (more than four inches across). The big ones reproduce and they're too chewy to eat anyway.

Anyway, we know he loves the tide clock since it occupies the ultimate place of honor, on top of the TV. When you visit him, he throws you out as the clock gets close to clam-thirty, i.e. low tide.

I keep a nice big chowder pot permanently stationed on my stove and a bottle of ketchup in the fridge on standby for clam arrival. You never know just when clams will show up in your life and you must be ready. Mamá always said, "Life is like a peck of clams, you never know what you're gonna git."

On Saturday nights we often have Clams and a Movie at my house. We steam a big pot, the beer flows like wine. My little brother Brian Boucher melts butter in a bowl and puts all of his clam in and eats them with a spoon like cereal. Sometimes I make clam fritters, which my Aunt Ruthie eats with maple syrup on them.

For those of you who are mollusk cuisine challenged, here's how you make fritters: Gather as many steamed clams as you can keep from your family. Cut them up into half inch chunks, the clams, not your family. Add one egg. Add a fistful of flour. Add salt and pepper, don't go overboard. Stir together, mixture will be thick and sticky. If you fling a spoonful of batter at someone and miss, the batter sticks to the wall about three minutes before it starts to slide down. Pour oil in a pan till it's a quarter inch deep at least, let it get very hot. With a ladle, CAREFULLY drop a scoop of fritter batter into the hot oil. Fry both sides, let cool a few minutes, then chow down.

Did you know that clams make pearls too? Yes, clam fans, its true. The mollusk we know and love makes pearls. Not glossy like oyster pearls. They look like tiny white pebbles. My grandfather had one of the clam pearls he found made into a ring. I have the other one and plan to have it made into a ring also. So the next time you're playing the undersea version of Trivial Pursuit and you hit a pearl question, you're all set!

Did you know the purple part of the clam shell was carved out and used by indians for money? Did you know a big clamshell ashtray can hold a full pack of cigarette butts?

Did you know that the Celts used to grind up the purple parts and make a blue dye to rub on their faces and scare people? I found that hard to believe at first. Then I realized, it would take some drunken Irishman to come up with that idea.

I can just hear it...."O'Malley, listen now.... what'll we be doin' with the pretty purples parts of all these clam shells? I was just tinkin', what if we, if we ground it to a paste? What's that O'Malley? Well, I don't know what the divel we'd do with it, wait, I'm havin' an idea, oooooooo, its a fine one. O'Malley, let's, let's paint our faces blue! Now doesn't that sounds like a fine, a fine idea now? Isn't that grand now, isn't that grand? We'll paint our faces blue and go home to the wives.....in the middle of the night.... they'll tink they're seein' spirits..."

Barbara and Earl Graves, Corporate Chairperson of this year's Rita Hayworth Gala, "Beneath The Harvest Moon," are hosting a kickoff party for the event in their home on Saturday, July 22, with lots of east-enders expected. This year's gala takes place on Wednesday, October 11, at the Waldorf Astoria in New York. Susan Hess is the Gala Chair, Claudia Cohen is the Honoree, Dr. Martin Citron is the Medical Honoree, and Muffie Potter Aston and Nurit Kahane Haase are the Journal Co-Chairs. The Rita Hayworth Gala was founded by Rita Hayworth's daughter and General Chair, Princess Yasmin Aga Khan, and raises funds for the Alzheimer's Association. The Gala is held every autumn, and is dedicated to fight this terrible disease.

elaine k.g. benson, her daughter's column

Last week Dan wrote about the cats in his house. He has a less than ideal relationship with his non-human housemates. I only have one cat so I can't complain about running through a bag of cat food every few days. In fact I have no complaint with my cat, Michel. Michel is quiet and pretty. She doesn't eat much and never seems angry with me if I leave her for too long. She is very loving but manages to maintain her independence. My answering machine often offers the choice of leaving a message for me or Michel. Most people leave their messages for Michel and on occasion ask her to pass along the messages to me. One friend who called didn't know that Michel is a cat and asked another friend if I was living with someone new. We all had a good laugh over it.

Michel has had three litters. All the kittens were given away without problem. I gave two to an artist named Bernice D'Vorzon. They are huge.

She takes great care of them and through her we hear from them at Christmas and other times of the year. An artist named Robert Bery became the living mate of another of the kittens when he innocently attended an opening reception at my gallery last year. His cat "child" is also enormous and very independent. He lives in a loft in the city and enjoys occasional visits to Montauk where he runs free for hours. He returns when Robert calls.

Three of Michel's babies traveled cross-country with her and me last fall. We packed them into a motorhome and found them to be great travelers. They took one day to adjust but ultimately they knew where their food and water were kept and had no problems. One of the kittens stayed with my friend Sandra in Santa Fe. We had also picked up a new kitten who was hitchhiking at a rest stop somewhere in the Mid-west. The two kittens have helped make Sandra's new house into a happy home.

The last of the kittens crossed the border into Mexico and have adjusted quite nicely to their new lifestyle. They follow my employee, Cano, around. They have had no problem with the change in language. They answer to Spanish and English when they want to. They have found a way in and out of the house without opening any doors but have also learned how to open the screen door from the inside and outside without difficulty. They put up with my dog, Kiwi. They have taken over the house. Michel who was born in Mexico flew back with me in March. She has now been on five airplanes and traveled up and down the Baja twice. She gets around.

We like to think we own our pets. I've come to think our pets own us.

Rebellion

on the second floor of Village Hall last Tuesday.

Sag Harbor has lobbied for years to get the State to do something about motorists speeding through town on their way to the ferry to Shelter Island. Through the efforts of State Assemblyman Fred Thiele, who lives in Sag Harbor, a team of highway engineers from the Department of Transportation came to the village, and over a period of six months, used their expertise, to come up with the aforementioned fourteen "traffic calming" projects. These projects would certainly slow speeding motorists down as they rushed from the Village Line on Hampton Street to the ferry at the end of the well named Ferry Road. There would be rumble strips, sidewalks, traffic medians and curb extensions. Also, there would be the aforementioned roundabout at the bottom of Main Street where six roads converged.

The Village voted to approve everything but the roundabout. The State replied take the roundabout or you get nothing. The Village caved. In May, they voted 4 to 1 to go ahead with the project, provided the roundabout could be put in on a "let's try it" basis, to which the State agreed.

And then, last Tuesday, after a sometimes angry two hour debate with the citizenry about ethics, sovereignty, stubbornness, freedom, government, power, fourteen wheelers and automobiles, the board announced it would take it to a vote.

"Why are you afraid of being persuaded?" shouted Lauren Fortmuller, a Glover Street resident. "What interests are you so determined to protect?"

The vote was taken. And one by one, the five members of the Village Board voted to reject the project they had approved only two months before.

There would be no bowing down before the great tyrant, Governor Pataki and his minion, Assemblyman Thiele.

A letter of encouragement from the Dali Lama should be in the mail any day now. Or at least one from Hillary.

Springfield, Massachusetts. The organization is trying to get the FBI to release forensic data on shrapnel-like objects found in many of the passengers and crew. FIRO is also seeking radar tapes from the Sikorsky plant in southern Connecticut.

At a press conference last August, FIRO revealed the existence of hitherto unreleased radar data showing more than thirty vessels in proximity or relative proximity to the crash. In a press release about the FIOA suit, FIRO states, "There has still been no official response or explanation as to what these thirty plus mystery vessels were, and why, despite being some of the closest, they did not contribute to any of the 755 eyewitness reports.

This past winter FIRO presented these questions and many others in a letter to Suffolk County District Attorney James Catterson, asking him to open an official inquiry into the tragedy. As of this writing Catterson's office has made no move to do so.

James Sanders has published two books on Flight 800: The Downing of Flight 800 and Altered Evidence. Much of the basis of his first book, an analysis of two swatches of seat fabric that Sanders contends is consistent with the ingredients of missile or rocket fuel, nearly landed Sanders and his wife Elizabeth (a former TWA flight attendant supervisor) in prison. Because Sanders had accepted evidence from an investigation (from a TWA pilot, an authorized agent to the investigation, in the Calverton hangar) he and his wife were found guilty in federal court in April 1999, though ultimately were not sentenced to serve any time in prison. They are appealing the conviction.

On Friday, July 14, Sanders, on a Connecticut TV station, presented what he said was proof that the government altered evidence in the course of its investigation into Flight 800. He followed this with a press conference in Washington, D.C. on Monday, July 17, the fourth anniversary of the crash.

At the National Press Club, Marge Gross, who had lost a family member, spoke to the media. "She is really the first family member to stand up before the media and ask them to not follow the government line," said Sanders.

He added that although most of the major media was represented only Fox News gave the press conference ample coverage.

Two eyewitnesses, Dwight Brumley and Michael Wire relayed what they had seen. Travelling in a commercial plane above Flight 800, Brumley, a naval warfare expert, had seen a missile-like flash that culminated in an explosion. Michael Wire had been working on a bridge in Westhampton when he had witnessed a streak of light ascending upward and culminating in an explosion. He has expressed surprise that the CIA had apparently based their analysis of how Flight 800 had acted after the explosion from his testimony. During a CIA-NTSB meeting in April, 1999, that the CIA said it had used Wire's eyewitness account for the "animation" which showed the plane rising after it exploded. Wire has said that what he saw that evening was not in agreement with the CIA's version of events.

In a recent telephone interview, Wire said that in retrospect it seemed more likely than not that the streak of light he had seen rise upward that July 17, 1996 had been a missile.

At the conference, Sanders, who asserts Flight 800 was brought down by a military accident, displayed photos "that show beyond any doubt the missile path entering the center wing tank on the right front side, coming up under the floor. It knocks the floor of the center wing tank all the way up to the passenger cabin and goes out the top of the plane. Every piece of wreckage from the center wing tank makes sense when you realize it was blown up, not down."

Sanders also displayed photos which he said show the wreckage of these pertinent parts of the plane being bent back the other way. "They had to make it look like something that it wasn't."

Sanders remarked that the gathered media did not display the usual scorn and arrogance toward the "missile theory" that had been the norm until recently. "I believe the media finally thinks they may have missed something. And I think that those of us who want the truth to come out have a month's opportunity before the NTSB hearing to keep bringing out important things in the press. The focus of the media is not going to go away just because the anniversary has passed." •

it off." She did not comply. It was all in good taste.

There were lots of other "acts." A fleet of barmen and waiters served the liquid and solid refreshments that were to be followed by a midnight supper. Milling about was the order of the evening, plus trying to recognize old friends in their costumes. Baritone voices emerged from pailletted ball-gowns. On the dance floor there was much to watch as disco music played. There were two discreet Port-o-sans off in a woody glen, I discovered in my wanderings.

At half after midnight, Jim and I started "judging," as the parade marched by. Many of the guests had gone to great lengths to create truly fantastic costumes. Others were merely amusing. As I remember (it was late, and I did not take notes), we awarded prizes to: George Whitney, "Most Beautiful"; Abby and B.H. Fridman, who came as Nick and Norah, of the "Thin Man" Most Original; an up-to-the-minute young man who came as Calvin Klein, in riding clothes complete with shiner, bandages, and presumably broken ribs (didn't catch his name), Most Tasteless. We gave the Madame Butterfly folks the group prize and cited rhinestone helmeted Rocco Liccardi, leotard-clad Galen Williams and Arab Shiek Kennett Love for Special Mentions. And, oh yes, a Yul Brunner "King and I" look-a-like, splendidly costumed, appropriately hairless, and golden earringed, who walked and danced just right, won something or other. It was getting late, and I was fading.

Harry arrived, carried on stage, preceded by colorfully dressed bearers of huge trays of food. Harry carried a sign that said "Supper is served." We then walked through a moss-floored space abounding in twinkle-lit trees to where the after-midnight supper was indeed being served. The crowd was really keyed up.

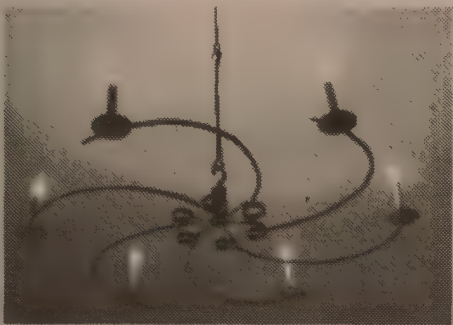

We estimated that there were more than 500 guests. The party had been almost a year in the planning and it showed. Our host was there to say "Good night" to us at around 2 a.m., but most of the party people stayed on.

As we left, we were handed one last silver bow-tied scroll, plus a return envelope to East End Hope for Hospice. Today I wrote my thank you note to Harry, sent my check to Hospice, and congratulated myself on my good luck at having been asked to such a splendid, original and well-organized party.

boardwalk, a polo field, a yacht club and a one hundred and ten room English Tudor hotel high on a hill which he called the Montauk Manor and which still goes by that name today.

Fisher was bankrupted in the crash of '29 and the project came to a halt. As the country was in the middle of a deep Depression, not much was done there for the next fifteen years. Fisher died in 1938.

In 1942, Adolph Hitler ordered six Nazi intelligence officers to come by German submarine to land on a beach in America at night. They landed in Napeague, just to the west of Montauk, walked to the railroad station and took the train to Astoria, Queens. But they didn't last long in this country. Arrested by the FBI, they were tried, convicted and hanged as spies.

In 1943, still during wartime, the United States Navy built a huge torpedo testing station on the shore of Fort Pond Bay bulldozing down the old Montauk fishing village in the process. Torpedoes would come off the assembly lines and factories in the Northeast and come out to Montauk on freight trains. They'd be fired off into the bay, unarmed, toward a dummy target, while being tracked by a small seaplane. After passing this test, they would be repacked and shipped off to the war in the Pacific.

When the war ended, this huge facility, along with a glass enclosed tennis court that Carl Fisher had built earlier across the street, housed a wide variety of enterprises for short durations. In 1948 the torpedo testing station was turned into a charter boat marina, restaurant and general store known as Shangra-La. The name had been coined by President Roosevelt during the war to describe the small mythical island that had served as a launching base for the two B-17 bombers that had rained bombs down on Tokyo. Bombers couldn't fly that far. Where had they come from? It was Shangra-La the president said. After the war it turned out it was an aircraft carrier.

Shangra-La lasted only three years, until the day an overcrowded fishing boat named the Pelican capsized and sank with more than 100 people on board, less than fifty yards from the Shangra-La slip. It was early in the morning of a bitter cold late autumn day, and just about everyone on board drowned. Shangra-La closed.

After that, the torpedo testing station became a high security parts depot for Republic aircraft sabre jets used during the Korean War. Helicopter pads were built, military officials flew in and out. After that, it became The New York Ocean Science Laboratory doing research on shellfish. Also, one year it was used as a base for experimental hovercraft.

In 1985 all the buildings of the torpedo testing station were bulldozed down and the debris piled in berms or taken to the Montauk dump. Across the street at the former glass enclosed indoor tennis court, the space was used as a boxing arena for a year, or a barn for steers and cows who twice a year were taken on cattle drives from Third House Ranch through downtown Montauk to the railroad station adjacent to the tennis court building. The space became a summer theater for traveling shows in the early 1960's, a movie theater from about 1965 to 1970. It has been unoccupied since.

Beginning around 1950, Montauk became a serious tourist destination for Americans going on vacation. More than forty motels were built between 1950 and 1960. The golf course originally put in by Carl Fisher was restored and upgraded to become a Robert Trent Jones course. The town got an airstrip, and celebrities began to make their appearance in the community buying or renting hideaways. Andy Warhol had a house down on the ocean for many years, Arthur Miller came out with his new bride, Marilyn Monroe during that era and the Rolling Stones vacationed in Montauk. The song, Memory Motel on one of their albums is about Montauk's Memory Motel on the Montauk Highway, still there bearing the same name.

Richard Nixon loved to vacation in Montauk, often staying at Gurney's Inn. He wrote his 1972 presidential acceptance speech at that inn. Dick Cavett bought a house in Montauk and so did Edward Albee, who still lives here. Albee bought the Montauk Manor Stable some years ago and runs it as an actors workshop every summer. Meanwhile for about a dozen years, Montauk ranch lands were used for annual rock and roll concerts that featured over the years, Paul Simon who bought a house in Montauk, Billy Joel, Ray Charles and Jimmy Buffet.

This then is the extraordinary history of Montauk. More of each of these incidents can be read about on a visit to the Montauk Library or the East Hampton Town Library.

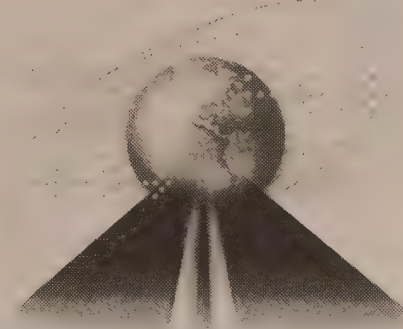

When a prominent movie director who lives nearby realizes the extraordinary nature of all these historical incidents, the history of Montauk, The Point, may be coming to a theater near you. ●

Guild Hall Playreading Series On Mondays

The Blue Heron has landed at Guild Hall and has kicked off the Monday evening playreading series with a reading of Jewel Seehauser-Fisher's Fanny and Walt, which they had recently mounted in their own theater at 123 East 24 Street in New York. The Blue Heron, the thinking man's theater, is a thirteen-year-old off Broadway company. Subsequent readings by the Blue Heron will be July 24 and July 31. On the 24th they will read We Are Your Sisters, an award winning drama with music, and on the 31st they will read Shakespeare's sophisticated romantic comedy As You Like It. Mondays in August will be turned over to the Abington Theater Company with their productions by American Playwrights with distinctive voices. A must see event.

The Horton Point Lighthouse, George's Place

By Pamela Gibson

George Washington was just twenty-five years old when he proposed the site for the Horton Point Lighthouse, one of seven lighthouses in the historically rich Town of Southold. A working lighthouse, listed in the National Registry of Historic Places, it includes a Nautical Museum surrounded by eight acres of lovely park, and a truly spectacular view across the Sound to Connecticut. When you stand on the cliff overlooking the water you can just imagine a young George Washington and his traveling companion Ezra L'Hommedieu discussing the placement of the tower and the keeper's dwelling, while gazing out at the great square-riggers of the time.

This summer the Horton Point Lighthouse has been immortalized in print by Jack Oxee of Southold. He has written a children's book called "Georgie's Bright Idea" and the illustrations by Peggy Leather, also of Southold, are not only magical, but encourage embellishment by those with crayons in hand. You can find this book at the lighthouse or the Southold Historical Society, which is the beneficiary of the book's sales, on Main Street in Southold.

Also, while standing on the grounds of the lighthouse, looking out to sea, you are reminded of the great challenges to ship captains in a time before electronics that now alert seamen to dangerous weather conditions, and when charts and landmarks, and even the lighthouse lights were primitive at best. On the lawn of the Museum is the enormous anchor of the Commodore, a 948 ton, 275 foot, side-wheeler built in 1848. The captain of the Commodore, when caught by a northwest gale and blizzard in the dark in the middle of Long Island Sound, having lost the stacks and rudder, was faced with the choice of remaining on a long anchor, possibly the only hope of saving his ship, or cutting the anchor line, letting the great ship drift to shore off of Horton's Point, and giving his 160 passengers and crew a chance to survive in shallow water. He had the courage to make the right choice, and cut the anchor, drifting to shore. When the next morning dawned, a local resident was able to row out and save all from the raging but shallow sea. The anchor was lost until 1995, when a fisherman, trawling the depths of the Sound dredged up the old anchor.

Inside the museum, Betty Schloss, a very informed Historical Society volunteer, pointed out the large antique light designed by Augustus Fresnel in 1853 in Paris. The lens is remarkable in its ingenious magnification of light, then provided by a whale oil lamp. Even with the 40 watt bulb it sports today, while mounted on a table in the museum, you can see and understand the wonder of the optics. Betty belonging to "every lighthouse preservation organization she can think of," is a true lighthouse fanatic. She enthusiastically recommended the United States Lighthouse Society Passport Program. For a small nominal fee you are issued a Society Passport Book and list of the participating lighthouses, there are hundreds of them, all over the United States, from Alcatraz, in San Francisco, to Bar Harbor, in Maine. As you visit the lighthouse your book is stamped. When your book is full, after about forty-eight lighthouse stops, you mail in your passport and receive recognition by the United States Lighthouse Society, a certificate, and a great looking patch, "I've seen the Light", limited only to those that have accomplished the adventure. It is a real treasure.

Touring the museum, with Betty Schloss' guidance, you can view many wonderful artifacts of nautical significance, from intricate scrimshaw to accounts of the passengers on the Amistad, to dozens of detailed ship models. There are ship's logs, law books, whaling tools, utensils, and many interesting examples of the china and textiles brought back to Southold by the captains of far traveling ships of commerce. For treasure seekers, there is certainly reason to believe that this part of Long Island is rich in pirate lore. In 1995, a scuba diver off Horton Point found a cache of Spanish eight reale coins, pieces of eight, reviving the Captain Kidd stories, and speculation about the significance of the ships lying at the bottom of the Sound.

Horton Point Lighthouse and Museum can be reached by traveling east on Route 48 to Southold, then left onto Youngs Ave., right on Old North Road, an immediate left on Lighthouse Road to the end. Lighthouse Park grounds are open at all times, while the Lighthouse and Nautical Museum are open Saturdays and Sundays 11:30 a.m. to 4:40p.m., further inquiries to 631-765-5500

Focus On The North Fork

When we arrived at the entrance to the elegant 1765 building, on the Main Road in Southold, which houses the Coeur des Vignes restaurant, we were immediately aware of a sense of welcoming and warmth. This was accentuated as we met with George and Donna Marie Pavlou and their son, Aristodemos, who are the proprietors and hosts.

George Pavlou was born in Cyprus and has been in the restaurant business for many years. His wife, Donna Marie was born in the U.S. in an Italian American family and spent fourteen years of her married life in Cyprus before returning to America. Their eldest son, Aristodemos was born in Cyprus and while living in the United States with his parents, decided that he wanted to go to live in Paris to study at the world famous Cordon Bleu establishment in order to help fulfill his long held dream of becoming a chef. "In Paris I worked and studied for fourteen hours a day, seven days a week and ended up by completing the two year course in one," he explained to us, "I was awarded the Grand Diploma which is only available to students who study both cooking and restaurant management. After graduating, I worked in a restaurant for about three years in the south of France before coming back to New York where I worked at Le Cirque and other restaurants." Donna Marie took up the story, "We first heard about this place from a colleague who lived in Cutchogue so we came out to see it. The building had been closed for over two years so we had a major restoration to do before we could open for business and even then, just two days before we were due to open, the bottom fell out of a twelve burner stove so it was a very traumatic time."

While mixing his special Cosmopolitan cocktail comprising, Vodka, Triple Sec, cranberry juice and lime, George told us about the house having housed a hostelry of many sorts since it was built as a carriage stop between Manhattan and the eastern part of the North Fork. Today, Coeur des Vignes is not only a restaurant but also a small hotel which offers four elegant, individually designed rooms with private baths and air conditioning. These rooms were totally rebuilt and Donna Marie recounted how some people have been aware of a "presence" some of the rooms. "Was it a ghost? I really don't know," laughed Donna Marie, "All our guests say they sleep well here and enjoy their stay, so that is the most important thing."

The dining room tables are elegantly decorated laid in a red and white theme accentuated by a single red rose on each table. It was easy to see how the ambiance would change with the time of day, at night it is a very romantic setting and Donna Marie mentioned that at least one proposal of marriage has been made during dinner there.

We left ourselves in the professional hands of Ari to enable us to taste a variety of his specialties. The French style gratineed onion soup was without any doubt the most memorable we have ever tasted. Donna Marie explained that this dish was based on a family owned recipe which calls for the onions to be caramelized slowly in the oven for eight hours but she refused to give away any more of what obviously is a jealously guarded secret. We savored it to the last drop. Our next treat came in the form of succulent escargots which had exactly the right degree of seasoning. Frogs legs were deliciously white and tender and came with a superb tomato based sauce which really enhanced the delicate flavor of the dish. The sauce demanded being mopped up with some of the excellent crusty garlic rolls. By the time that we were served with lightly seared foie gras accompanied by a melange of warmed berries and figs, we were in no doubt that this was to be an evening worthy of a Lucullan banquet. George enjoined us to taste some of his special French peach liqueur with the foie gras and we had to agree with him that it did indeed taste as though there truly was a ripe peach in the bottle.

Ari enjoys the creativity of devising new dishes and using to the fullest the many fresh ingredients available to him. He also enjoys teasing with something unusual. This was shown when he served us a delicious palate cleansing salad of local mixed greens and with it he added a piece of exquisitely delicate white fish which had been simply grilled. When we failed to identify it he told us that it was baby Shark which had just been locally caught.

After an adequate pause for contemplation of the dishes we had already tasted and anticipation of joys to come, we reveled in the perfectly prepared baby lamb chops and the roasted quail. The quail was served on a bed of a vegetable which we could not place.

However, we did not feel too guilty about this when Donna Marie told us that it was fiddle head fern, because we had neither ever seen or heard of it before!

Although, the restaurant has a wide range of desserts, we were pleased that Ari selected one of our personal favorites, creme brulee, as the finale. In common with the rest of the meal the creme brulee was a masterpiece, rich but not overpoweringly so and with a delicately crisp topping.

While digesting this superb meal we talked with Donna Marie, "In the two years since we opened, we have built a loyal core of regular customers who come from all over the island and from places in Massachusetts and Connecticut. I keep a rolodex of our customers' special needs so that we can cope in advance with peoples' dietary problems. We set out to meet special requests and for example, given notice, Ari will prepare meals without using wine in the cooking and he will use fruit juice instead if that is what the guest needs. All we ask for is adequate notice. Once we had a customer in who wanted a particular pasta and we explained that we do not offer a wide range of pasta dishes but if he told us in advance the next time we would do our best for him. Lo and behold, the next time, he sat down and told his server that the chef said he could have the pasta he wanted if he told us in advance. The point that, in advance, really meant calling us before hand seemed to have escaped him! Any way we did end up giving him his pasta but he had to wait a little longer than normal for it."

Coeur des Vignes has a very extensive, sensibly priced wine list and to ensure that no one is left out they also offer gourmet pooch biscuits for your special dog.

From Donna Marie's anecdote and the way that guests' likes and dislikes are chronicled, it is easy to understand why Coeur des Vignes has become one of the most favored places to eat on Long Island. When you leave, you feel that you are leaving family, even though not many of us have family who cook like Aristodemos Pavlou, more's the pity. This should be your choice for a special evening or any time, lunch or dinner, when you yearn for that mixture of food, setting and welcome which makes for a memorable meal. Call 516-765 2656 for reservations and remember to tell them of any special requests. You will be glad you did!

Exotic Cars Desired By Many Hampton Residents

Many Hampton's residents are finding that they do have the financial ability – and that the time is now – to move on up to dream car status. "We've seen the demand for pre-owned exotic motor machines surge. As more people are moving on up, there's a really great inventory of pre-owned exotics now on the market," says David Nostrand, president of Tyrolean Auto Sports, Inc. of Northport.

Taking a stroll through the pre-owned inventory at Tyrolean is comparable to taking a bite from a luscious German chocolate bar. We didn't know whether to drool first at the retro 1966 T-bird or the hot and sleek 1997 Aston Martin DB-7. Decisions, decisions. Beauty, speed, cat-like sinewy lines, power, brawn, mechanical soundness and good ol' prestige were all represented well in the Tyrolean pre-owned exotic inventory with a guaranty to get a few heads to turn your way when you go crusin' in one of these. You could almost feel the wind in your face!

Each of the Tyrolean motor machines, the east-coasts' source for pre-owned exotics, has been through a rigorous hundred point inspection by Tyrolean's exotic car mechanical specialists. This group of technicians has a combined eighty year history working on all exotic car makes including Mercedes Benz, BMW, Porsche, Ferrari, British sports cars, racing automobiles and the classic Americans. Says Mr. Nostrand, "When you've been in this same business since 1967, you know a quality pre-owned car when you see it. We like our pre-owned vehicle selection to be ones that have been pampered, cherished and expertly or meticulously maintained."

Mr. Nostrand added that each customer seems to have a different desire or objective when they purchase a pre-owned exotic car. Some see its desirability in being how collectible or rare the car is, others want handling ability, agility and speed – a real driving machine – and others want that feeling of nostalgia or heritage. And others want it all in a single, fine-tuned, prestigious driving machine. Considering it's summer and the Hampton's, there's also a strong demand for "put the top down and get a tan" convertibles.

"Our biggest satisfaction is to see a new comer or someone moving up in the exotic car market get their new car. It's such an exhilarating experience for them," says Mr. Nostrand. Tyrolean Auto Sports has a myriad of purchasing and financing options available on pre-

owned exotic vehicles.

"People have so many choices – they may want to keep the '66 T-Bird forever. Maybe it reminds them of the ultimate dream car from when they were in high school, or they may want the Jaquar convertible for this season, but want to be seen in something different next year. There are lots of choices and programs to choose from," says Mr. Nostrand. But the way we see it, the bottom-line benefit is that you can have even more fun this year! Call Tyrolean now at 754-6134 for inventory information and to be placed on their monthly newsletter list.

Shop 'til You Drop ...With Maria Tennariello

Well, well well! Guess what I did this weekend? I actually went to Dan's 40th Anniversary party on Saturday evening and danced the night away to the music of the Lone Sharks, my favorite band. It was pouring rain, we were under the biggest tent I have ever seen and everyone had a great time! Happy 40th Dan! Sunday, I shopped, my feet were killing me, but, the shop-a-holic that I am, I shopped all day long.

East Hampton's London Jeweler on Main Street is showing their rare and unusual collection of Herend dinnerware and figurines that include the rare lavender fishnet figurines. A Herend representative will be on hand to answer questions at the East Hampton store on Saturday, July 22. Don't miss this one!

The Light Touch, unique lighting and service, has brought you twenty years of experience. Located on Main Street in East Hampton look for custom lampshades, unique lamp creations, chandeliers, antique restoration and repairs.

The Ladies Village Improvement Society of East Hampton, (LVIS), located on Main Street is having a fair on July 29. The crafts booth this year will be carrying a variety of handmade items for sale. Most are by local craftspeople and have been donated. Other items have been purchased at wholesale prices by the crafts booth Chairs. Included in the large selection of unusual craft items are hand painted wood pieces, whirligigs, pottery, decorative papers and picture frames, hand-sewn children's dresses and vests, needlepoint, holiday ornaments that include a small selection of historic buildings, greeting cards, hand painted tiles and boxes, children's activity, coloring books and more. Highlights will be two pottery demos by internationally known East Hampton sculptor, Phyllis Hammond and Sag Harbor potter, sculptor and teacher, Marie Wynn. East Hampton painter, Helen Semler, who designed the LVIS holiday cards, will also be painting tiles during part of the day. This is a do-not-miss fair. Be there!

I love Khanh Sports on Park Place in East Hampton for men, women and children clothing, bikes, surf boards, bathing suits, skateboards, boogie boards, balance boards and much more. Khanh has over 1,000 sun dresses to choose from. Bet you don't buy just one!

On Montauk Highway at Treasure Island there is a mid-summer inventory clearance sale going on right now. There are great deals and steals here, like rich teakwood that is beautiful as well as durable, umbrellas, patio furniture and accessories, all under one roof on two floors. Hey, this is the place to get your summer outdoor parties ready to go.

Look for a hot sizzling summer sale at J. Tortorella Pool & Spa Center that has already started. Located on West Montauk Highway in Southampton, the store wide sale offers 10% to 30% off selected items and will end on July 23. You will find fun pool, spa and beach accessories, luxurious floats, aqua golf and basketball, hammocks, pool and beach toys, wrought iron furniture, all weather wicker furniture and of course pool chemicals.

If you're planning a party and want it perfect, call Hampton Party Designs located on Mariner Drive in Southampton. They do it all, decorating for parties, weddings, and all special events that include floral design and balloons. Call 283-5533 for information.

How about that Edward Archer on Main Street in Southampton? My friend John went to check out the fine men's clothing and furnishings and found Brioni, Hickey Freeman, Bruno Magli, Gran Sasso, Valentini and much more. Open Monday through Saturday, you gotta be in it to win it!

Have you been to Claire Murray Lifestyles in Southampton yet? Located on Jobs Lane at the Fountain Circle you will find unique merchandise like hand hooked rugs, woven throws, bed and bath items, needle art kits, wearable art, and home accessories.

Talk about designer clothing, stop in at Val's Closet on Montauk Highway in Hampton Bays. Val has designer clothing at amazing discount prices such as DKNY, Laundry, Calvin Klein, ABS and more.

Westhampton Beach's Annie & Moe Factory Outlet has wonderful hand-painted children's gifts and accessories. Located on Riverhead Road, Annie & Moe is now open to the public. You will love this store!

Around Again is having a 20% off sale on all their selected merchandise. Located in the Long Wharf Promade, next to Overseas Connection in Sag Harbor, has quite a nice selection of furniture, art deco, vintage clothing, costume jewelry, baby accessories and clothing and much, much more.

Around the corner at Jubal's, there is an amazing throw pillow sale going on right now. This is the time to accessorize!

Don't forget to stop in at the Sag Harbor Florist on Bay Street with those beautiful, one-of-a-kind to die for, floral arrangements. Mona, the owner, hand picks and designs all the floral arrangements for you and yours and whatever. Bring that perfect person in your life some flowers, they brighten anyone's day.

Take a nice little stroll on 114 (next to Sag Harbor Beverage) to C.B. Summerhouse, formerly of Southampton where you will find an eclectic array of vintage clothing, antiques, knick-knacks, hand-painted furniture and an unbelievable variety of fabrics.

At Metaphysical Books and Tools on Main Street, Lindsay is stocked to the rafters with wonderful aromatherapy candles, incense, books, tools, tarot cards, jewelry, crystals and magazines. Love this store! Love Lindsay!

Right around the corner, one of my all time favorites, glad she's back for the summer in Sag Harbor is Bloomin Shells. Debbie-Lou where have you been? This shop is a wonderland of shells, mirrors, jewelry, wind chimes, odd and unique merchandise at very reasonable prices. Trust me on this one.

A bit off the beaten path, sail into summer with the biggest ever warehouse sale at Tee-Wear in the Feather Hill Commons on Route 25 in Southold. You will love the ladies golf wear, tennis wear, resort wear, and accessories at 50% to 75% below wholesale prices. This sale is on right now and will run until July 29. Don't miss this opportunity to buy the wear - now sportswear at really unbelievable savings. Call 765-6250.

The Pendleton Brand, with roots dating back to 1863, signifies the authentic, hardworking and unpretentious standards of the past while creating timeless fashions and fabrics that are current for today's lifestyle. The company, which is now in its fifth generation of family ownership and management, continues to produce its legendary blankets and has grown to encompass a full range of better sportswear for men and women. Long Islander's are fortunate to have one of Pendleton's few outlet stores located at the Prime Outlets, Bellport on Sunrise Highway. There you can purchase this classic merchandise, known for its high quality, and great savings.

O.K. time to go and put my feet up again, it's been a long weekend. Until next week. Ciao and Happy Summer Shopping!

P.S... I Love You!

Take two women and the same passion for fine stationery and unique gifts and you will have the combination that makes up King-Beck Fine Stationery. Alice B. King and Sandi Beck-Silverman are a dynamic duo and together they bring a vivid imagination to life in Bridgehampton, having designed the store in a very unique manner, stocking the shelves with colorful, fun and very different items related to the written word.

Alice's expertise of personalized stationery, announcements and invitations, etiquette knowledge and uncanny ability to unite people and the written word makes ordering personalized stationery a stress free experience.

Sandi is always searching for unusual stationery and gifts for charity events, the corporate world and of course for the bridal party and other special occasions. She is always looking for the unusual and if she doesn't find it, she creates it!

At King-Beck Fine Stationery you will enjoy shopping in this little jewel of a shop, browsing among the upscale merchandise like hand painted enamel stationery boxes, a fine selection of pens, photo albums and leather books or finding fun gifts to send to your child or grandchild at camp. King-Beck offers a very wide variety of stationery and invitation albums from the well known upscale names of Crane, Dempsey and Carroll, William Arthur, Lallie, to the newer and more unusual companies like Sweetsar, Blue Mug and Woodson. Thank You

This is an open letter that we wish to share with everyone. Every once in a while something magical happens. For us it was the 40th Birthday Celebration Party that was held last Saturday night at the home of our friends Andrew and Diane Lanyi. Dan and Cat

When I approached Andrew and Diane for the use of their home, they said they would be delighted and they didn't even flinch when I mentioned Fire Eaters and clowns on stilts. I needed to keep it a surprise from Dan. Oh, he knew about the party but not about the Fortune Teller and the authentic '60's Flower Children March that was set up or the Groucho Marx's masks.

I placed calls to his buddies for help. Marty Richards, Wilbur Ross and Stuart White all came through for Dan and personally provided the entertainment out of New York. They became the sponsors of the Party. I will always smile when I think of their generous spirit and the child in all of them.

In keeping with the 40th celebration, please bear with me as I sing the praises of two very special artists that participated. Irving Boker designed the great cover that was on the July 15th party issue. Alex Echo, an internationally known artist, as a surprise for Dan, painted a collage of words from Dan's Papers first issue. The individuality of Alex was so apparent in this beautiful one of a kind painting. Dan is proud to own these two beautiful works.

Next on my agenda was the staple of the party...food. There is somewhat a new kid on block who happens to have the best chef in town. Hal Zwick insisted the Paradise Café provide us with every thing to nibble on. Little did I know that Steven Putnam, his chef would have ice sculptures amidst the Raw Bar and those tiny lambchop pops that everyone went crazy over...Hmmm...mmmm...mmmm.

Where was this going to be on their property? The only spot was the tennis court. Wine Country Tents without a doubt is one of the most professionally run businesses that I have ever worked with. Dealing with me on the day of the (storm impending) party were two cool guys (Dennis and Mike) who just tied that tent down, to blow nowhere and it was brilliant white and beautiful. The flowers were coming in from Sag Harbor Florist's Mona, who has the most creative touch in her arrangements. I only had to give her the theme and she ran with it. It made the tent look like a cross between a circus and a night-club...just what I wanted.

To have Bill Sokolin pick out the wine and Martin Silver of Argent Vodka insist on manning his own bar table was a lovely gesture of friendship to Dan. Bridgehampton Country Market owners Jennifer Schmidt and Robert Schmidt stocked the soda bar...it was almost like borrowing a cup of sugar from our next door neighbor. It was family coming together. Berkowski dropped off a ton of ice with a big smile saying it was their pleasure to be involved, as did Dannon Water.

All parties out here have found the need to assure everyone's safety and security at large gatherings such as this. I really needed advice and have the ability to turn this over to someone else. Someone I could depend on so I could be hosting the party with Dan. New York Security Service turned out to be our "team". I do not say this lightly. Arriving in black tie with ear phones in place they took all my anxiety away. They were everywhere and nowhere at the same time. They anticipated problems and solved them only for me to find out later. Thank you, Stephen Browand.

As I am unabashedly thanking everyone, I want to especially thank my favorite rock and roll band...The Loan Sharks. If the cocktail tables had held the weight of our guests they would have used them to dance on. I must mention the following generous friends who stocked our gift bags to the point of them spilling over:

Mr. Dan Wassong of Dell Labs (Sally Hanson) has never disappointed me in always being there to lend a hand or beauty products as the case may be. The hot new spa Style Bar and dear friend John and Joan Gruen sent hats and tee shirts. Our own famous team of Betty and Mickey Paraskevas of Junior Kroll, Maggie and the Ferocious Beast (to name a few of their many hits) contributed all those great dolls. The only man I know who looks wonderful in all black...thanks, Mick. Everyone flipped over the chocolate customized CDs on the tables and white chocolate business cards. Edible Portraits are the only people who make them. This should be a definite at any party as was the "Bedroom Trivia" game that was passed all around that had people laughing and chuckling at the party.

The entire party was videotaped by our beautiful, talented Kathy Rae - just don't sell it to Hard Copy.

To all who helped in making this wonderful celebration for our Dan, we thank you from the bottoms of our hearts....and don't forget it's only ten years away for the 50th.

To my assistant...Denise...I couldn't have done it without you!

Yours, Cat

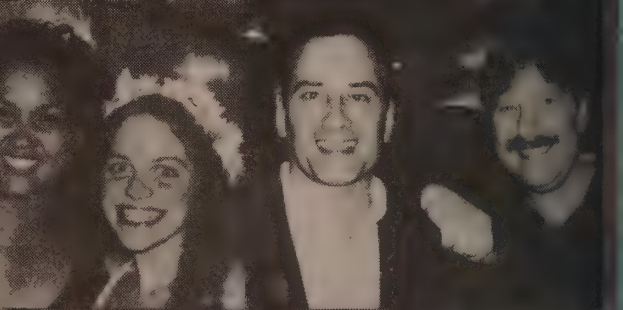

40th Anniversary

The Big Four Oh

The rain last Saturday night could not dampen the spirits of the hundreds of guests who came to celebrate the 40th Anniversary of Dan's Papers. The big event took place at the home of the savvy stock selector Andrew Lanyi and his wife, Diane. Guests included Hamptons icons like Roy Scheider, Hamptons newbies like U.S. Senator Chuck Schumer, past and present employees and columnists, some advertisers, friends and family. Unlike most events the people at the door seemed to know the guests upon sight and by name. There were several tents where guests could meet each other or re-unite or just tell Dan stories. The always-knowing-what-to-do Cathie Squires had several wonderful surprise gifts prepared for Dan and the cheers seemed to drown out the speeches. So here's what I had prepared to say to Dan Rattiner:

*Here's to you Dan, a true original
With a wit that can pierce like a laser beam,
one never knows what he'll say
With a great insight into people and a highly sensitive BS meter, you never know what he'll write
But you can kind of guess what he's going to wear.
I propose that Montauk Highway from the Commons to the statue be renamed "DAN'S WAY".*

ART COMMENTARY

With Marion Wolberg Weiss

"3-D" AT ELAINE BENSON

The figurative sculptures by Hilda Steckel which greet visitors at Bridgehampton's Elaine Benson Gallery set the right tone almost immediately: colorful, fun and just right for the summer. The pieces themselves might not please everyone's tastes, but the atmosphere certainly should.

Amy Zerner's fabric art is an exception in that the work is a crowd-pleaser on all level – as both spirited (literally and figuratively) and also as examples of fine craftsmanship. Her materials are collected from bits and pieces all over the world; her themes are universal, too. Some of her jackets and hangings tell stories while others are masterful aesthetic patterns.

Nico Yekta's tables are just as finely conceived and executed, although they need more gallery space to breathe. (Their placement is a matter of logistics, considering the gallery's configuration.) Irwin Perton's chairs continue the exhibit's playful atmosphere; his small benches (including Toulouse Lautrec) are especially appealing.

Giancarlo Impiglia's colorful geometric pieces seem very much at home with Mr. Perton's chairs: figurative art which makes comments on various aspects of society.

The gallery's sculptural court is playful and spirited as well, although not literally as "colorful" a site to behold as most other pieces in the exhibit. Children would have a real frolic among the pieces there.

"PORTFOLIO PROJECT" AT PRINTMAKERS INK

A hidden treasure among East End galleries is Printmakers Ink, situated down a driveway off Main Street in Sag Harbor. Low key in its approach and location, the print studio consistently shows high quality work, some of which is produced on the spot. Many of its printmakers are primarily painters who want to experiment with other media.

Plain and simple, they do top-notch work with ideas that have substance. Personally (and subjectively) speaking, this critic welcomes the chance to see an entire exhibit of good prints after constant exposure to often huge and "heavy" paintings/sculpture. Call it a break from "overload," although exactly what kind of overload is in doubt.

Established printmakers like Dan Welden and Bill Negron use color and line especially well, employing detailed yet graceful design with maximum effect. For that matter, each artist has made a special contribution to his/her etching. Consider, for example, Dianne McMillan's hand-made paper, Lou Zacks representative rendering of Canio's, Kryn Welden's color-enhanced process, and Eric Ernst's excellent tone gradations.

Consider, too, Bob Markell's delicate nude combining representation and abstraction, Stephanie Reit's very personal and provocative idea, Diana Plitt's charming concept, and Ben Gurevitz' arresting gestural abstraction. And it's always a pleasure to see familiar objects crafted so well by Marie Rosso, Linda Capello, Maria Warach, Lynn Heffner and Vito de Vito.

The exhibit at Elaine Benson Gallery will be on view until August 1; the show at Printmakers Ink (150 Main Street in Sag Harbor) will be on view until August 4.

"Table" by Nico Yekta

HONORING THE ARTIST: IRVING BOKER

While the portrait of Dan Rattiner on last week's cover was special, marking the paper's 40th anniversary, an accompanying article about its artist, Irving Boker, was inadvertently left out. Typical of Mr. Boker's easy-going and forgiving manner, he, took it all in good stride.

Mr. Boker is also taking the success of his art work in stride. The art we're talking about is the American flag, originally a painting and now available as a lithograph: Mr. Boker makes no bones about being excited, particularly regarding the opportunities the flag has brought him: speaking engagements on Aircraft Carrier Intrepid, where he will stress World War II veterans; the flag's presentation to Mayor Giuliani on Flag Day; and its display at New York's famed Fraunces Tavern, along with original Colonial flags.

Mr. Boker is excited these days, too, because he still can't believe that his passion for the flag has stirred similar sentiments in other people. Or, as Mr. Boker expresses it, "It's amazing. I never imagined my painting would be anything but hanging over the fireplace. I had no idea it would create such emotions."

While Mr. Boker's entire professional life has not been focused on flags, per se,

(he had an advertising agency for several years but handed it over to his son seven years ago), his work does indicate a penchant for America and its symbols. Take, for example, his love of the land as featured in his Rocky Mountain landscapes.

Mr. Boker's subject matter doesn't start and stop with America, however. He's managed to create paintings with an African theme, as well: farmers, hunters and indigenous animals like water buffaloes.

Mr. Boker doesn't simply spend his time in the studio either. When he's not involved with the marketing of his flags ("doing for myself what I used to do for my clients," he explains), he teaches during the winter months in Venice, Florida. "I learn more from my students than they do from me," he says with sincerity.

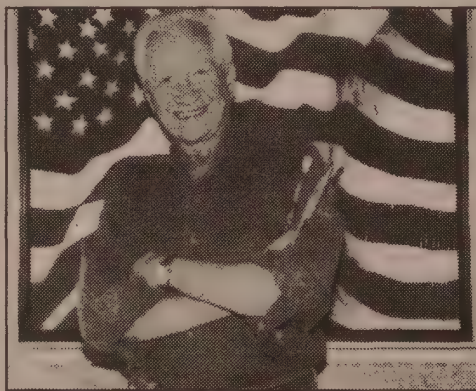

Mr. Boker continues, "When I instruct, all types of artistic problems become apparent." We would add the following observation: when Mr. Boker teaches, it gives him another chance to become introspective, allowing him to make comments that all artists think about but don't often express.

"Being an artist is a constant search for fulfillment," Mr. Boker says. "Every painting opens a door to a new problem and a new set of demands. But that motivates me to do art." What also motivates him is his passion. "Hopefully, viewers will see this same passion in my work," he remarks. "Then it's successful."

Judging from people's reactions to Mr. Boker's flag, that passion has certainly been conveyed. And what better subject matter to be the recipient of such feeling. After all, the American flag is going to be around for quite awhile yet. "It's not going out of business," notes Mr. Boker.

—Marion Wolberg Weiss

GOING OUT GUIDE

Hamptons Summer 2000

So far this summer has been a great one. The Hamptons have really been the place to be. Every weekend there is tons of stuff to do. You can go to a bar on the beach or a disco lounge, drink, dance, or even get a fake tattoo. Many of the hot spots out here have employee nights during the week so there is something to do every day. Neptunes and Summers are right on the beach so it's easy to lie out all day and walk right into the bar for happy hour. Each weekend they have live bands and DJ's. NV has more of an upscale atmosphere with comfortable couches and lots of Champagne. Jet East and Conscience Point are also nice to get dressed up and dance the night away at. On the quieter side Riccardo's on the water in East Hampton has music on Sundays where you can watch the beautiful sunset as you enjoy dinner. Jeneen's has jazz every weekend and the Farmhouse has watermelon martinis half price on Thursdays. There truly is something for everyone. I'm sure the rest of the summer will be as great as it has been so far. Check out Dan's Papers every week for what's happening at your favorite place. Keep dancing and having fun!

HAMPTONS NIGHTLIFE WITH CHRISTINE CARROLL

Shout out of the week goes to: Kerry Ragusa, good luck!

I went out to The Beach Bar on Tuesday night, it was so much fun. Keith and Cheesecake promised it would get packed and it certainly did. Sorry we owe you a drink! Check it out every Tuesday for employee night, it's worth the trip to Hampton Bays. My friends went to Casey's on Wednesday and said that was good too. They also went to NV on Thursday and now want to go every Thursday. Friday I wanted a nice quiet atmosphere so we went to World Pie after a long day at work. That place got so packed I couldn't believe it! I did have a great time though.

Dan's Papers 40th anniversary party was on Saturday and that was a blast. Afterwards a bunch of us went to 75 Main and danced the night away. They have a really good DJ, and the atmosphere is very nice. Have a great weekend, maybe I'll see you out!

Entertainment, benefit and events are at a fever pitch. Here are highlights: Music Festival of the Hamptons has its final concerts; Bay Street Theatre's next play Love, Janis opens; B.J. Ward's Stand-Up Opera and then the Preservation Hall Jazz Band play at Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center; The Clancy Brothers and then TV personality Al Roker are at Guild Hall; the Off Broadway show Always Patsy Cline opens in Montauk, and there's a blues festival in Riverhead. Poet/playwright/social activist Imamu Amiri Baraka (formerly LeRoi Jones) speaks Saturday at the Parrish Art Museum, canters from around the world perform a "Cantorial Extravaganza" on Saturday evening in East Hampton, and Tovah Feldshuh does Tallulah Tonight on Monday at Bay Street Theatre. The Bridgehampton Historical Society has appraisers on Saturday and the Bridgehampton Polo Club begins competition Saturday afternoon graced by the presence of His Royal Highness, Prince Albert of Monaco.

The big benefits this weekend are for the Childrens Museum of the East End (with Joy Behar and Wilson Pickett), Standing for Truth in Radiation (Billy Joel), South Fork Groundwater Task Force (Peter Stone and Judy Licht), and The Harbor for Boys and Girls (picnic and fireworks led by George Plimpton). For details on these events and several more, read on:

THEATER

Sag Harbor's Bay Street Theatre opens a three-week run of a new musical headed Off Broadway. Love, Janis tells the story of 1960s rock star Janis Joplin who died of a drug overdose at 27. The show is conceived, adapted and directed by Randal Myler (It Ain't Nothin' But the Blues), based on a book by Joplin's sister Laura. Performances are Wednesdays through Sundays. On Monday, July 24, there is a one-night-only show—Tallulah Tonight! starring Tovah Feldshuh. For tickets to Bay Street attractions, call the box office at (631) 725-9500.

Montauk Theatre Productions also has an Off Broadway musical running for the next several weeks.

Take Five 2000 with Jan Silver

Ted Swindley's Always, Patsy Cline is the story of the famed country singer's long-term friendship with a fan. The show stars Kirsten Becker and Anita Brown and plays Wednesday through Sunday. Reservations are a must at MTP's intimate South Elmwood St. theater; call (631) 668-5656 for tickets ($20).

This is the last weekend to see Spindletop Productions version of Sam Bobrick's Hamlet II, a spoof of Shakespeare's melancholy Dane. It plays as a dinner/theater package on Sunday and Monday evenings at Rocco's Restaurant, 21 West Water Street, Sag Harbor. Dinner is at 7 p.m. and the play begins at 8 p.m.; the tab for both is $39.95. Reservations are recommended; call (631) 725-0358.

Off Broadway's Blue Heron Theater Company presents a staged reading of its award-winning show We Are Your Sisters, based on the lives of several African-American women, at Guild Hall, East Hampton, Monday at 7 p.m. Tickets are $12-$15 at the door.

MUSIC
The Music Festival of the Hamptons has its final concerts of the season. Pianist Daniel Beliaevsky plays Scarlatti, Mussorgsky, Schubert and Chopin this Thursday evening at Guild Hall. The violin/piano duo of Phillip Quint and Tatiana Goncharova play selections by Brahms, Beethoven and Tchaikovsky on Friday evening at Guild Hall. The two Saturday programs at the Festival Tent on Snake Hollow Rd., Bridgehampton, are mezzo-soprano Fredrika Brillembourg and pianist Scott Dunn performing classical "Songs & Arias" at 5 p.m., and the gala closing concert "Celebration of Jazz, Broadway and Cabaret" with Mary Cleere Haran, Ted Rosenthal, Colleen Fitzpatrick, Don Smith and some surprise performers honoring Broadway composer Richard Adler is at 8 p.m. Picnic dinners can be ordered in advance (631-267-8293). For exact programs and times, call 800-644-4416; for tickets, call Ticketmaster at 212-307-7171 or 631-888-9000.

East Hampton's Guild Hall has Music Festival of the Hamptons concerts on Thursday and Friday, and then the Clancy Brothers and Eddie Dillon come in to perform traditional Irish music, poetry, and stories on Saturday at 8 p.m. For tickets ($38-$40), call the box office at 631-324-4050.

The Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center brings in singer/actress/comedienne B.J. Ward with her musical comedy show Stand-Up Opera on Friday at 8:30 p.m. Saturday evening, the Preservation Hall Jazz Band brings their New Orleans' style music to WHBPAC. On Sunday, there are two afternoon performances by musician/comedian/puppeteer Norman B. Foote. For ticket reservations, call the box office, 631-288-1500.

The Riverhead Blues Festival is Friday through Sunday. The Kerry Kearney Band is there Friday. Sam Taylor, Heather "Lil Mama" Hardy and Little Curtis play on Saturday, and the Might Flyers headline Sunday afternoon. It all takes place at the Peconic Riverfront park. For information, call (631) 727-3200.

There are first-class musical events open to the public at Sag Harbor's Temple Adas Israel and East Hampton's Jewish Center this weekend. At the Sag Harbor synagogue on Friday at 8 p.m. N'ranena, a Manhattan a capella singing group, will perform a program of traditional and modern songs. On Saturday at 8 p.m. in East Hampton, six cantors from across the U.S. will join East Hampton's Debra Stein-Davidson in a "Cantorial Extravaganza" at the Jewish Center of the Hamptons. For tickets to the cantors' concert, call (631)

PARIS REVIEW:

FLIGHT FROM SCHLOCK SHOCK

Let's get one thing straight. Contrary to the words of some friends . . . I did not exactly leave these beloved warm, apple pie and cheddar cheese shorelines on a fast plane to France, my blessed mere's land of tarte aux pommes and stronger cheese, just because of the release on the public at large, of Scary Movie and Me, Myself and Irene. True, I feel that they should have been kept locked up in the can until their assaultive natures were tamed or, at the very least, they were house-broken. But hello there, this is a somewhat free country and, as the Grand Old Dame said . . . "People can do as they like . . . as long as they don't do it in the streets and frighten the horses" . . . and, we must pay admission to be assailed by what is supposed to be strong satirical humor but, is actually the weakest and lamest. When someone says jokingly, "Break a leg!" in Scary Movie and the young woman's leg pops with a bloody broken bone, it isn't necessarily the shocking, visual I'm objecting to. . . what truly bothers me is the kind of thing that's almost passing as humor. I can't give it a ha-ha or even a titter.

Even the little kids give it only a hesitant, mandatory guffaw (an older kid might be noticing).

GROSS NATIONAL PRODUCT

Gross-out movies continue to be among the top grossers. Scream 3 (as of this writing) was fifth on the list of the years top 20. I guess, it moves Miramax Screams distributor to rush to judgment with pushing their Scary Movie out there. It's supposed to be a parody of Scream 3 . . . which is a parody! How do you parody a parody? They tried to do it by pushing the taste limits of other terminally adolescent "success" movies like American Pie, wherein a young man sexually penetrated Mom's apple pie. (Oh; Mama! you didn't hear that! Ooh-la-lah!) So, every sex joke or smear is pushed in the way it would be done by a coalition of Mad Magazine and Screw Magazine. Genitals and pubic hair are major butts (excuse me) of the jokes along with any excretion, possible from any orifice in the body, except for lint from the navel. Mix it with billowing, incessant pot smoking and "Slice and-Dice-Spice-Girls-Forever" hacking and you have the industries creative tracking ambition, done with enough drive and technology to send the population of Oswego, N.Y. to the moon . . . if they wanted to go.

Scary Movie
Me, Myself and Irene

You may have noticed, I have not named names here. This is to protect the guilty. However, here's a whole bunch of initials . . . B.O.B. W.E.I.N.S.T.E.I.N., one of the formidable brothers of mad Miramax Films. Guys I really admire but, Bob says to the world, about how far a movie should go . . . (no doubt he wants it to go to Oswego but, otherwise) he says, "If it's funny, it's in; if it's not, it goes". Well, gee, Bob, fun is fun . . . but, this just ain't that funny. It isn't like you re-whipping a horse or anything in the movie, but, everyone of these you put out there is beating a dead horse. You know? I expect a lot more to come. Oh-wah!

ME, JIM CAREY (HIMSELF) AND JERRY LEWIS

I'm reminded of the bruh-hah-hah (yes, there were laughs then) back when Jerry Lewis did his moronic kid routines. A bit of sophistication was edging into those innocent (in movies and TV) times and aside from the dumbness . . . he also exhibited enough mental deficiency insensitivity to draw fire. Today, the Farelly brothers, proud of making Dumb and Dumber their metier and way of life, when combined with the assertive power of Jim Carey, have made Me, Myself and Irene far and away, the most offensive purveyor of mental illness and physical disability bashing. Along with that and their usual reliance on poo-poo and other bodily ejections for "Good Humor". At one point, they relate chocolate ice cream to you know what. I rest my case. . . (at Orly Airport).

For years now, we smarty-pants critics have been laughing at the French, for laughing at Jerry Lewis. How can I face the Cinematique Francaise?

GOING OUT GUIDE

Our Three Hour Tour

I've decided that I want a boat. It is so relaxing to ride on the water, feel the breeze, and soak in the sun. Kathy Rae, our operations manager, and I went on a tour of the Hamptons and the surrounding area a few weeks ago with Vick Levy of Surfside Marina III, South Shore Boats. It was so cool to pass by the birds and watch them swoop down into the water for their lunch. It was a great experience, not only the boat ride, but the tour Vick gave us. He took us along Dune Road, through the Shinnecock Canal, and back through the Quogue Canal. We stopped and had lunch along the way at Oaklands Restaurant and Marina at the Shinnecock inlet in Hampton Bays, which was delicious. You can pull your boat right up to the restaurant. They also have a gas station for your convenience. The sun was shining so we ate outside. The service was very friendly and helpful. But the food, creative American cuisine was even better.

Vick pointed out all of the landmarks, and the hot spots. We saw Neptunes and Summers, which look so different from out there. He showed us where Dune Road had been destroyed, but is now being rebuilt, good luck to those daring people who trust their home to the fierce Long Island storms. We saw where the famous fires had burnt an apartment complex down, which is also now rebuilt. His knowledge of the area was like listening to a history professor. Obviously he took pride in his work and he was a true gentleman. Surfside

Kathy, Vick & I aboard the Sea Ray.

Marina is located in Westhampton Beach at the end of Library Lane. They sell the most beautiful boats. We went out on a 28 foot white Sea Ray that was so sleek and beautiful. The boat was only one hour old so we were the first privileged people to be on it. Every boat we passed, Vick would comment that he sold that boat. I was amazed at how everyone waved and remembered him. He must run a good business. He talked about how important it is to know how to drive a boat. Levy said he would have no problem showing a potential client the ropes of the water. Better to be safe than sorry. Kathy couldn't believe how smooth the boat ride was, we avoided all of the waves and hardly hit any bumps. Experience does pay off.

Surfside Marina is also located in Mattituck on Main Road (298-5800). Both stores sell sport boats and sport cruiser's. Some of the models include the new 240 Sundeck, the 240 Sundancer 5.0L, the 270 Sundancer and the 245 Weekender. Prices range from a little over $15,000 to as much as over $70,000. They do run specials, and they also sell quality pre-owned boats. Vick Levy is the general manager of the Westhampton Beach office. If you are interested in boating, or purchasing a boat give them a call at (631) 288-2400. You can also visit them on the web at www.southshoreboats.com. I wouldn't buy a boat anywhere else.

324-9858 ext. 201.

Pianofest, the program for up-and-coming concert pianists, has its Monday "concert with commentary" at the Avram Theater, Southampton College, 4 p.m. Tickets are available at the door ($10). The Perlman Music Program, for exceptionally-gifted music students, has open, informal classical music performances (no charge) at its new Shelter Island campus. For a schedule, call (631) 749-0740.

Music at the clubs: Some of the mellower and swing-danceable music around this week: Dennis Raffelock Trio at Bridges on Friday from 7 p.m. followed by DJ Karin Ward at 10 p.m. (Sag Harbor/Bridgehampton Tpke.); Kipling's trio at Kipling's on Friday (Main St., Bridgehampton); Stefanie Cardinali, Paul Gene and Rick Salter on Wednesdays and Saturdays at the Montauk Yacht Club; singer/songwriter Shana Young at the Hansom House, Sunday 9:30 p.m.; pop standards with Diana Rogers at East Hampton's Maidstone Arms on Sunday from 5 p.m. Jazz at The Wild Rose (Bridgehampton) this Sunday evening features guitarist Mark Elf (shows at 7:45 and 10 p.m.; $25). Amagansett's Stephen Talkhouse brings in reggae artist Everton Blender on Thursday, rock band NRBQ on Friday followed by the Lone Sharks, Electric Hot Tuna and then the Hotheads on Saturday, Electric Hot Tuna and then the all-woman Antigone Rising on Sunday. There's a benefit for East Hampton's Whalebone Village next Wednesday; call 631-267-3117 for all Talkhouse tickets.

SPEAKERS

The Hampton Library's (Bridgehampton) popular "Fridays at Five" chats by well-known writers, has Jean Strouse talking about her new, acclaimed biography of J.P. Morgan in the garden behind the Main St. building. Admission is a $15 donation to the library. Refreshments are served following the program (rainsite, Bridgehampton School). Book Hampton, East Hampton, brings in The New York Times' reporter Ralph Blumenthal to discuss his new book about the fabled Manhattan night spot The Stork Club on Friday at 7 p.m. Local resident, cook and successful hostess Ellen Wright demonstrates recipes from her new cookbook Bridgehampton Weekends on Saturday, 5:30 p.m., at Book Hampton. At Canio's Books, Sag Harbor, poets David Lehman and Marc Cohen will read from their work on Saturday at 6 p.m.

The Parrish Art Museum has many distinguished speakers associated with its current "Frank O'Hara and American Art" exhibit. This Thursday, July 20, a group of famous artists and poets—all friends of poet/art critic Frank O'Hara—will read at 7 p.m. including David Lehman, Larry Rivers, Jane Freilicher and Joe LeSueur. On Friday at 6 p.m. David Lehman, who also teaches at Bennington College and The New School, will speak about O'Hara and the artists of the abstract expressionist movement. On Saturday at 7 p.m., poet/playwright/social activist Imamu Amiri Baraka (formerly LeRoi Jones) will talk about the beat generation writers, including O'Hara, and his relationship with them. There is a small admission fee to these talks ($3-$10).

There are several good readings on Sunday. Television weatherman Al Roker will talk about his experiences as a father, son and brother in the "Writers at Guild Hall" series at 2 p.m. (no admission charge). Roker has just written a touching and humorous memoir about fatherhood, Don't Make Me Stop This Car, which is climbing up bestseller lists. Poets Jill Bart and Vince Clemente will read from their work at Clayton Liberatore Gallery, Bridgehampton, at 3 p.m., and the East Hampton Historical Society's "Poetry Marathon" continues at 4 p.m. at the Marine Museum in Amagansett. Scott Chasky and Michael Walsh will read their poems; refreshments follow the readings.

FILMS

Filmmaker Aviva Kempner will introduce and screen her award-winning documentary about a professional baseball great, The Life and Times of Hank Greenberg, on Sunday, 10 a.m., at the East Hampton movie theater ($5 admission). The Parrish Art Museum's "Monday Night at the Movies" continues with Slam, the true story of Washington, D.C., poet and small-time hustler Ray Joshua who is jailed for drug possession (7:30 p.m.). Guild Hall's Tuesday "Artists on Film" feature is Camille Claudel about famed sculptor Auguste Rodin's gifted protégée and lover (7:30 p.m.) Fine arts writer/cinema historian Dr. Marion Wolberg Weiss leads a brief discussion after the screening (tickets $10 and $12; call 631-324-4050).

BENEFITS AND SPECIAL EVENTS

The South Fork Groundwater Task Force has a

"Celebrity Surprise Auction" on Friday, 8:30 p.m., at East Hampton's Vered Gallery. Playwright/screenwriter Peter Stone and TV newswoman Judy Licht will auction personal items (including art) donated by Spalding Gray, Peter Matthiessen, Betty Friedan, Larry Rivers, Richard Adler and others. The evening includes wine, cheese, dessert and coffee. Tickets are $50 in advance or $75 at the door. Call (631) 725-6200.

The Bridge Hampton Historical Society has professional appraisers from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday at its Main St. location. Bring your unknown "trash and treasures" to a Butterfields Auctioneers expert for valuation ($15 per item, limit 5 items). Any questions, call the Society at (631) 537-1088.

The Bridgehampton Polo Club opens its Mercedes-Benz Polo Challenge season on Saturday. The honored guest for the afternoon is Prince Albert of Monaco. The action starts at 4 p.m. at Two Trees Farm on Hayground Rd. (between Scuttlehole Rd. and Montauk Highway). There is a small admission charge per car. Bring refreshments and chairs for a tailgate picnic; there is also seating in the stands. Rainedate is Sunday, 2 p.m.

The Children's Museum of the East End has a "Benefit Under the Stars" at Channing Daughters Winery off Scuttlehole Rd., Bridgehampton, on Saturday starting at 7 p.m. Comedian/television personality Joy Behar will host the evening which includes cocktails, dinner, dancing and a show featuring soul/rhythm/blues legend Wilson Pickett. Local swing-music trio Stefanie Cardinali, Paul Gene and Rick Salter will also entertain. For tickets ($300), call 631-537-8250.

Billy Joel returns to the East End on Saturday at 7 p.m. to give a musical lecture as a benefit for the STAR Foundation (Standing for Truth About Radiation). The site is Southampton High School. A few tickets ($40) may still be available; call (631) 324-0655.

The Harbor for Boys and Girls on Springy Banks Rd., Three Mile Harbor, East Hampton, is a camp for disadvantaged city children. George Plimpton hosts the annual picnic and Grucci fireworks evening for The Harbor on Saturday, starting at 7 p.m. This is a family event; rainedate is July 23. Call (631) 324-5480 for ticket information.

silvia lehrer's cooking column

I love a barbecue. All manner of grilled foods, seem to jump right off the glossy front covers of major food magazines at this time of the year. Sweet, smoky barbecued chickens, chili-rubbed rib eye steaks, marinated baby-back ribs, summer vegetables and even fruits beg for grilling.

When firing up the grill, barbecuing offers many choices, even healthy ones. Here are a few low-fat tips from the American Institute for Cancer Research. Grill marinated chicken breasts on the bone to maintain their moisture. Remove the skin after grilling, if desired. A great way to use the many vegetables hitting their peak of summer freshness is to grill them. To keep the vegetables from drying out, brush them with oil then baste with an herb marinade while grilling. Grilled vegetables, with their variety of color and shape, make a stunning presentation.

Fruit on the flame tastes delicious as the heat of the grill caramelizes the natural sugars in the fruit. Prepare brochettes of firm-fleshed summer fruits such as pineapple, chunks of apricots, peaches and plums for a sweet treat.

Happily the time has passed when we only think of barbecue as hot dogs and hamburgers.

GRILLED CHICKEN BREAST WITH GRAINY MUSTARD

The best thing you can do for chicken is not to overcook it. The marinade helps to keep it moist while cooking.
Serves 4.

2 whole chicken breasts, split
1 bunch scallions, white & light green parts, thinly sliced
2 tablespoons grainy Dijon mustard
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
Coarse (kosher) salt

Freshly ground pepper
4 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil

1. Trim excess fat from breasts and discard. Rinse clean and pat dry with paper toweling.

2. Place finely chopped scallions in a bowl, add mustard, lemon juice, salt and freshly ground pepper to taste and stir to mix. Whisk in olive oil until mixture is the consistency of light mayonnaise. Put chicken breasts in bowl and turn to coat in marinade. Marinate for several hours if time allows and refrigerate covered. Bring to room temperature before cooking, if refrigerated.

To grill: Preheat grill until coals are ashen hot. Scrape the marinade from the breasts and set aside for basting. Place chicken breasts skin side up about 3-4 inches from source of heat and grill, covered, about 5 minutes on each side, turning once. Uncover and cook for 3-4 minutes on each side. Baste with reserved marinade until skin is crisp and lightly charred. Chicken should be firm but springy to the touch when done. If the breasts are not completely cooked but are charring too much, it may be necessary to put them in a 300 degree oven for 6-8 minutes to complete cooking.

-Or-

To broil: Preheat oven broiler. Line a shallow roasting pan with aluminum foil, shiny side down. Arrange chicken breasts in a single layer, skin side up, directly on foil and place about 3-4 inches from source of heat. Broil 5-6 minutes on one side. Turn pieces, baste with marinade, and broil 3-4 minutes on other side. Turn skin side up basting again and broil 1-2 minutes longer until crisp and golden brown.

Note: The breasts are delicious served at room temperature or even cold the next day.

CHAR-GRILLED VEGETABLES, ITALIAN STYLE

Grilling vegetables is an effective way of concentrating their flavor. Make it easy, do them ahead and serve at room temperature. They are delicious that way.
Serves 6-8

2 Vidalia or large red onions, outer skin peeled and halved
2 red bell peppers, rinse, dry and leave whole
1 yellow bell pepper, rinse, dry and leave whole
3-4 fresh, young zucchini, scrub well, dry, cut in half lengthwise and score
1 medium eggplant, rinse, dry and cut into 1/2-inch lengthwise slices
Extra-virgin olive oil
2-3 large, firm tomatoes, rinse dry, cut in half cross-wise
Coarse (kosher) salt
Extra-virgin olive oil
Freshly ground pepper
2-3 cloves, finely chopped garlic
3-4 tablespoons chopped, flat-leaf Italian parsley

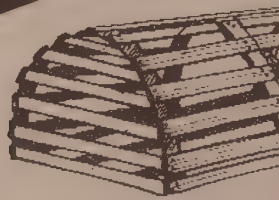

1. Preheat a gas grill or prepare a fire until coals are ashen gray and flames have subsided. Start to grill the onions and peppers first, turning the peppers, until they are well charred on all sides. Peel away blackened skin of the peppers and discard seeds. Onions should remain crunchy; cut into quarters. Transfer to a platter.

2. Brush eggplant and zucchini slices with olive oil and grill for 2-3 minutes on each side. Eggplant should be creamy tender, not charred or it will be bitter. Transfer to platter with peppers and onions. Brush tomatoes

Dining IN THE HAMPTONS

Recently friends and I discovered a gem in Bridgehampton. Nestled midway between Sag Harbor and Bridgehampton on the Turnpike is the quaint roadside restaurant, Bridges. Owners Jeff Cook and John Lock have created a restaurant with phenomenal cuisine via chef John Jacob and excellent service supervised by manager Sheila Jacob in a comfortable atmosphere, making the entire dining experience a treat. The interior space features soothing lavender walls with crisp white tablecloths and majestic chandeliers overhead. We began our meal with a couple of glasses of chardonnay from Napa Valley while we sampled the warm crisp bread served with a tapanade that had a distinct hint of garlic. Our appetizers arrived wafting aromas tempting our tastebuds. There were the Maryland style crab cakes - lightly breaded and meaty served with a tangy sauce which complemented the cakes perfectly. We also sampled the fresh steamed mussels. If you're a dunker you'll love the mussels. The generous portion of shellfish is served in a tasty broth of fresh crushed tomatoes, chorizo, garlic and thyme. We also ordered the endive salad, which was the perfect summer salad. This spirited mix of tangerine, beets, olives and toasted pecans in a citrus vinaigrette was light and flavorful. Finally the standout appetizer was Jacob's signature dish spanakopita; a spinach pie with onion, pine nuts, raisins, scallions and fresh herbs. The distinctive mix of ingredients created an exquisite taste for the palate.

Bridges

As we prepared for the next course, we enjoyed a glass of a rich and full-bodied Stonestreet Merlot. For entrees we ordered the lamb shank, the salmon, the tuna and the rib eye steak. The fresh tuna filet encrusted with sesame seeds was lightly pan seared and accented with a subtle yet complementary peanut Szechwan sauce. The salmon, which was a special for the evening, was like butter as it melted in our mouths. The light cream sauce served with the fish brought out the rich flavors in the fresh filet. The lamb shank was cooked to perfection - slowly braised so that the meat was tender and falling off the bone. The shank was glazed with a white wine sauce that created a sumptuous gravy with the natural juices of the meat. Finally the steak. It was perfectly grilled to a medium rare flavored with fine herbs. Each entree came with a nice mix of vegetables a sweet potato, white potato and fresh spring asparagus. We cleaned our plates and debated whether we had room for dessert.

Once we were told that all of the desserts were homemade by Sheila we couldn't resist sampling a few. There was strawberry shortcake with fresh strawberries sauteed and served over fresh whipped cream and homemade biscuits - traditional and savory. We tried a couple of different types of pie: nutty apple pie with delectable baked apples and a nutty crumble crust; pecan and macadamia nut pie which was a divine mix of the two nuts with a sweet filling; and peanut chocolate chip pie which was an appetizing marriage of peanut butter mousse with chocolate chip accents. There was also a fudgy rich brownie topped with vanilla ice cream and finally an impressive ricotta cheesecake, a nice twist on the traditional dessert. All of the desserts were amazing and well worth the extra pounds! A perfect end to a perfect meal.

Also of note: Bridges features live music Thursday, Friday and Saturday night to accompany your meal. And on Sundays they host a Gospel brunch featuring a live gospel choir from a local church. Unfortunately we did not experience the music as we went on a weeknight, but I will definitely be back to have another memorable meal while taking in the sounds of live music.

with olive oil and grill cut side down. When the flesh is partly charred, turn them and sprinkle with salt. Add tomatoes to the other vegetables, arranging everything as attractively as possible.

3. Season with salt and pepper, sprinkle with chopped garlic, drizzle a bit more olive oil if needed and sprinkle over chopped parsley. Serve warm or at room temperature.

To prepare ahead: Prep the vegetables up to several hours ahead. Follow steps 1-3 up to two hours before serving.

PINEAPPLE ON THE GRILL

Grilling lends a smoky sweetness to the pineapple by caramelizing the fruit's natural sugars.

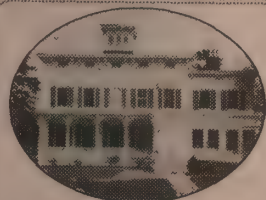

Serves 6-8

1 cup freshly squeezed orange juice

1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon cinnamon
4 tablespoons unsalted butter
4 tablespoons sugar
1 ripe pineapple, peeled, cored & cut into 1/2 inch thick rings
Vanilla or rum raisin icecream

Preheat grill or broiler to high. Combine orange juice, vanilla and cinnamon in a small saucepan and bring to a boil. Let simmer for 6-8 minutes until syrupy. Keep warm. Meanwhile, melt butter in a small skillet. Remove from heat and stir in the sugar. Dip each pineapple ring in the butter sugar mixture, coating both sides; shake off excess. Place each pineapple ring on a medium-hot grill for 2-3 minutes per side, turning once. Place each ring in the center of a dessert dish, top with a scoop of icecream and spoon a little of the warm sauce over each ring. Serve at once.

EAST END FARMING WITH JOE GERGELA

Long Island Farm Bureau is known as the Voice of Agriculture because we work within the system to advocate for the farmer on all levels of government. You probably already know that Joe, our executive director, is a registered lobbyist and spends a lot of time in Albany and Washington, DC. Two ways we serve our members, as well as the entire East End community, is to give them the opportunity to speak with candidates, and to educate the candidates about what issues are important to the farmer. Well, last week was a very exciting week for LIFB staff. Joe had been able to arrange a visit by Democratic Senatorial candidate Hillary Clinton. She was set to take a tour of Ivy Acres, a cutting edge greenhouse operation in Baiting Hollow, and then speak to the public in the production house – a huge structure that holds the robotic machinery for transplanting.

Joe, Rob, Ceil and I were hustling all week to make sure everything went perfectly. On Thursday, her advance people came down and looked over the buildings that Mrs. Clinton would be touring. They devised the format and the traffic pattern. We invited the public and notified the press. Nate Corwin, Ivy Acres manager (and former LIFB president), arranged for a platform to be built and our display was set on it, decorated with beautiful flowers. A table was set up next to the platform with a display of local products – corn, sod, flowers, wine, fruit and vegetables.

Friday morning, we arrived around 8:30 a.m. Every inch of the buildings was being checked out with metal detectors. I met Balto, a German Shepherd that was checking things out with his nose. In the hours before the big event, my co-workers and I had the chance to chat a bit with the young men on Mrs. Clinton's team. This was the first time we had ever been involved in the coordinating of an event of this magnitude, and we were surprised to hear that it was the first time for several of them, too.

Many people showed up early and, having to wait outside, got to see her motorcade slowly move up the driveway. The excitement was mounting. When Mrs. Clinton entered the building with Joe, Nate, Jack Van de Wetering, Tom Twomey, Judith Hope, Bill Sanok, Joe Sieczka and others, the press went into action, snapping pictures and writing furiously while Nate and Jack demonstrated the robotics. Once she and her entourage moved into the greenhouse area, we opened the door to let everyone in. It was our job to make sure the dignitaries and special guests were directed to reserved seats. People were eager to get the best spot but were mostly on their best behavior. There were many children and several people with signs welcoming our guest. Finally, she finished her tour and was greeted by enthusiastic applause when she stepped on stage. LIFB president Howard Johnson emphasized in his opening remarks that Farm Bureau is a non-partisan organization and does not endorse any candidate. He said that we were proud and pleased that Mrs. Clinton was able to visit, and we hope to act as host to her opponent, Rick Lazio, for a similar event. Joe spoke about the importance of farming here and the critical juncture at which we have found ourselves. He then introduced our guest.

I know that Joe will want to share with you his unique perspective of this experience in a future column, since he was with Mrs. Clinton every minute from the time she arrived to the time she left. I thought that she addressed the important issues with candor, and much of what she said was met with spontaneous applause. After answering several questions from the audience, she worked the crowd for nearly half an hour, speaking with dozens of people and posing for photos.

By the time most of the people were gone and the display was broken down, all I could say was "Whew!" It was certainly an exciting day for me. It's the first (and maybe only) time I've ever met a First Lady, and in my own hometown, no less!

The American Hotel

By Chris Stanley

Located in the heart of Main Street, Sag Harbor, The American Hotel is one of the trendiest historic inns in the Hamptons. An early Victorian red brick building, it was built in 1846 by cabinetmaker, Nathan Tinker to house a row of small shops, featuring his own cabinet shop beneath a complex of second floor apartments.

In 1877 Addison Youngs converted the centrally located old building into a hotel, complete with electric lights, baths and steam heat, making it one of the most modern hotels on Long Island.

Until recently, the Village of Sag Harbor had been known as the "un-Hampton" because of the "proletariat" element the old whaling town had been associated with. As one of two main ports of entry in all of New York State, the wharf at the end of Main Street has seen much trade and traffic. Whaling vessels had docked there, as well as slave ships, and it is only during the most recent years that impressive schooners, yachts and major voyager vessels have been docking on Long Wharf.

Sag Harbor's early inhabitants were Algonquin Indians, who enjoyed the abundance of fish and clams in the fresh water ponds until the Indians of Shelter Island granted stewardship of the land around North Haven to the settlers in 1665. This marked the beginning of industrialization of the Village, where shipbuilding, farming, rope making, warehousing and salt making were among the many products. The major industry was whaling - a feature which is represented repeatedly in the widows' walks on top of many of the flat-roofed historic buildings, the floating whale on the pond at the Main Street entry to the Village, and the impressive Whaling Museum facing the John Jermain library.

Sag Harbor is a village divided between two entities—Southampton Town, which recorded Sag Harbor by name in 1707—and the portion of the village that was recorded by East Hampton Town in 1698—the part of Sag Harbor that had been called Great Meadows that lies nearest to Hog Neck where the Algonquin Indians had once resided.

Sag Harbor is the earliest incorporated village in Suffolk County—dating back to 1846.

The American Hotel, undoubtedly housed a great variety of guests through Sag Harbor's colorful history, which included a bawdy, raucous period following the collapse of the golden age of whaling.

Economic prosperity reigned again when a new wave of industry moved in during the late 1800's, bringing with it The Fahys (Bulova) Watch Company, the Bliss Torpedo factory, and the Grumman Plant.

These factories provided a livelihood for the inhabitants of Sag Harbor until approximately a half century ago, and it is only in the past two or so decades that Main Street has been transformed into one of the most charming haunts of the rich and famous.

Replete with boutiques, gourmet restaurants, antique shops, a major water-side theatre, an art deco movie house that often features foreign films, and panoramic water views of incredible sunsets, Sag Harbor has stepped out of the shadows of industrialization and into its own place in the sun as a major tourist attraction.

The American Hotel, owned by Ted Conklin for the past three decades, has managed to retain the charm of a fine Victorian inn, complete with an intimate parlor that allows guests to play backgammon, chess and checkers while mingling at the beautifully finished bar.

The restaurant is considered to be the most classic and the best in the Hamptons, with a wine cellar whose offerings come from the earliest and most precious vintages.

Both spacious and distinctive, the hotel's eight guest rooms all reach up to high ceilings and boast of a décor replete with Victorian and art deco antiques. Each room has a private bath with a tile floor and a Jacuzzi for two.

Precious, worn Oriental rugs, sleigh beds, brass beds, and beds with carved Victorian walnut headboards evoke an elegance of a previous era—perhaps the faded luxury of a period men's club. One might find carved crystal glasses, the earliest manual typewriter or someone's ancestral radio. Overstuffed chairs, ornate mirrors, weighty hand-carved dressers display the elegance and the careful workmanship reminiscent of a by gone era.

The American Hotel is open year 'round and has been known to host celebrities from all over the world. Its famous restaurant and lounge have hosted theatrical readings and musical performances and was the location of a movie, which was produced in the village of Sag Harbor at the end of the last century.

Summer Antiques Show In Southampton

The much anticipated Summer Antiques Show in Southampton will debut on Friday evening, July 28, from 6-9 p.m. with a Preview Party to benefit the League of Women Voters of the Hamptons. The Summer Antique Show continues the proud tradition regarded as "The Best Antiques Show in the Hamptons" with a spectacular Eleventh Anniversary Antiques Show highlighting some of the more prominent exhibitors in the United States and Canada. In dramatic room setting booths, the international exhibitors will offer for sale the finest in American, European and Asian antiques, fine art, decorative objects, period furniture, estate jewelry, rugs, lighting, textiles and pillows, porcelains, silver and so much more. The Antiques Show will then continue to be open for general admissions throughout the day on Saturday, July 29 from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Sunday, July 30 from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Held in the Recreation Center of Southampton High School, 141 Narrows Lane in the Village of Southampton, the Summer Antiques Show appeals to the most discriminating of tastes. Perpetually a hit with local and summer residents, the Antiques Show offers an opportunity to view and purchase from many exhibitors who make this show their only appearance in the northeast. In a review of the antiques show from last season, the gentleman reviewer wrote, "As always there were decorative oddities acceptable to the old money Hampton natives who think of this show as their own—the best of the East End season." From the review of yet another publication: "Many dealers reported that the questions books on the applied and decorative arts and architecture. There will be dramatic 18th and 19th century painted, folk and primitive furniture and early decorative accessories offered to attendees from Rhinebeck, New York antique specialists Gold Goat Antiques.

Another exciting new addition to this event is the French decorative arts c. 1930 to 1940 that will fill the expansive stand of Tom Thomas of New York City. David and Donna Kmetz of Douglas, Massachusetts will have a gallery booth of fine art featuring regional New England artists.

Returning to the popular antiques show will be Deco Deluxe of New York City bringing art, furniture, lighting accessories and fireplace equipment and Laura Breyer Works on Paper, Inc., also of New York City, showing the finest in antique prints for the home or decorator. Joan Grober of GGG Antiques, Inc., who is a perennial favorite of the hundreds who flock to this show, will bring the highest quality estate jewelry for her eleventh season with Oliver and Gannon in Southampton; her only appearances in the Hamptons. Also returning for his eleventh show in Southampton, Zane Moss Antiques, Ltd., of New York City will be showing fine English furniture, porcelain, silver, paintings and appropriate accessories. From the lovely orchids gracing the entrances to the far reaches of the hall, this is a quality antiques event and worthy of a visit.

The Summer Antiques Show in Southampton Preview Party includes fine food and summer drinks, early buying privileges and re-admission to the antiques show throughout the weekend. Tickets for the opening event are $25 in advance from the League of Women Voters of the Hamptons at 537-0120 or $30 at the door on Friday evening, July 28. The Saturday and Sunday admission is $6. For further information, contact Oliver and Gannon Associates, Inc. at 518-861-5478 HYPERLINK mail to: shows@albany.net or preview the show on the web at www.ShowsFairFestivals.com.

were intelligent, the interest was high and buying strong." This is truly the one antique show of the summer season that is worth the wait.

The 11th Anniversary Summer Antiques Show proves once again why this particular show has been afforded so many accolades. Hailing from Florida, Akanthus Antiques of Ocklawaha will bring 17th to 19th century Continental, English and American furniture and original art work by noted artists. The Merchant Princess of Macon, Georgia will have textiles, upholstered furniture, pillows and early lighting, and Tang & Stevens, Inc. of Atlanta will be showing Chinese antiquities from 2000 B.C. to 19th century bronze to ceramic figures as well as 17th to 19th century Chinese furniture and laquered wood statues.

New to the prestigious antiques show this season is the Long Island firm Art Books Only of East Hampton offering art and antiques reference books, as well as

The use of cherries as a folk cure has been passed from one generation to another like a precious heirloom. People know that eating cherries and drinking cherry juice helps relieve inflammation, arthritis pain and gout, but they don't know why. Now, the scientific explanation is being probed by researchers at the University of Michigan, who are comparing cherries to aspirin and ibuprofen for pain relief. They believe the pain relieving compounds are in the pigment.

Make room on the aspirin shelf because, according to the Cherry Marketing Institute in Lansing, Michigan, there may even be a cherry pill in the future that will offer similar relief.

Cherries also provide the same health benefits as red wine. You can avoid a hangover and get the same salutary effects by eating cherries instead because quercetin, the naturally occurring substance credited with a decreased risk of coronary heart disease and cancer, is in the pigment of grapes and cherries. The rich red and blue pigments are like fancy plumage, nature's way of attracting insects and higher animals for pollination. As an added bonus, cherries are a source of boron, which is good for bone health. They are also a good source of fiber and vitamin C.

Recent research has indicated that fruits and vegetables contain plant chemicals (literally, "phytochemicals") which are as important to our health as vitamins and minerals. One vital branch on the family tree of phytochemicals is a group of substances called anti-oxidants. Flavonoids, a type of anti-oxidant, are like offspring and quercetin, a type of flavonoid, are like first cousins.

Cherry season, like summer, passes too quickly, so enjoy a big bowl of cherries while you can. Dried cherries, although expensive, pack a lot of flavor and can be used in cooking throughout the year. The texture and sweetness is an ideal accompaniment for game, fish and poultry. Include them in salsas, scones, cookies and compotes as well. For purchasing information about dried cherries contact: Mariani Packing Co., Inc. in San Jose, California, 800-231-1287.

CHERRY SALSA

- 1 lb. Bing cherries
- 2 ears of fresh corn, cooked
- 1 Tbsp. pickled jalapeno, minced
- 2 tsp. cilantro (or parsley), minced
- 3 Tbsp. oil
- 2 Tbsp. balsamic or rice wine vinegar
- dash of salt

Pit cherries and cut up. Remove corn kernels from the cob and put in medium-sized bowl with the cherries. Add remaining ingredients and serve as a condiment for fish or meat. (This can also be prepared in winter months using canned corn and dried cherries.)

Deep Tissue Massage-Is it for You?

Years ago, massage was massage, you had a basic soothing and relaxing hour. This "spa" massage remains popular and has been complimented with treatments such as aroma therapy, herbal wraps and skin treatments for those who loved to be pampered. Over the last ten years, I have seen a number of changes in massage – especially in the needs of clients. What has happened, is that people have become more educated about massage, its therapeutic value and the modality that best works for them. I suppose we could call them "masseur connoisseurs." What I have seen is that the majority want to know, better understand and take seriously- deep tissue massage. People who are that discerning about their sessions are wonderful for the massage industry. So, what is deep tissue massage? Rather than give you a textbook definition, I am going to share some of my experiences with this type of therapy. I call my work Swedish/ Deep Tissue. With Swedish, I apply oils

to the skin and use strokes specific to that style, that allow me to give a soothing, relaxing massage – if that is the client's desire. With deep tissue the work is a more vigorous, focused and thorough manipulation of specific muscle groups. For example, for a person who experiences discomfort in their shoulders, upper back and between the shoulder blades, a large part or all of a one-hour session could be spent on those muscle groups rather than receiving a full-body massage. Many connoisseurs go for a ninety-minute session, so they can have the best of both worlds-thorough work to relieve specific discomfort and a full-body massage. So let's get a little deeper into what deep tissue massage is. Stress is a systemic problem which tends to manifest in specific ways and areas; headaches, stiff neck, upper and lower back pain, sore legs and achy feet. Stress causes imbalances in the chemical make up of body tissues, causing muscle discomfort, contractions or spasms. The imbalances consist of many things, including lack of oxygen/excess carbon dioxide, toxin and waste build-up to name a few. Deep manipulation of the affected muscles can force these impurities into the blood and lymphatic systems. The impurities are then transported to the liver and kidneys for purification or use as waste. The art of deep tissue is the ability to sense and understand a person's threshold for pain and do the work with minimal discomfort with maximum results. Finding this threshold that borders between pain and pleasure is what my clients and I call "hurts so good therapy." Deep tissue work is a real work-out, "no pain-no gain" – there is some discomfort. But as deep tissue lovers know the long term relief from soreness and pain is well worth the initial discomfort. – Kevin Reynolds

Fundamentals of the Golf Swing

In a golf game the key to consistency is sound fundamentals. The four basic fundamentals consist of the grip, alignment, posture, or stance. One of the reasons most people struggle is because they change at least one of the basic fundamentals. The average golfer that I have taught in my fifteen years of experience definitely changes his grip or alignment. The grip is important because this influences the final direction the ball takes after impact. Most golfers hold the club too much in the palm of each hand, which makes the left weak and the right strong. This position makes it very difficult to square up the clubface at impact. A sound swing should take place in less than 1.5 seconds from takeaway to impact. A proper neutral grip with the club handle more in the fingers of both hands will make it easier to square up the face with the body's rotation.

The second abused principal is alignment. Most golfers have a tendency to either set up to the right and pull across their bodies and slice the ball or over compensate by lining up too much to the left. The ideal set-up is square or parallel. This means our club head is aimed at our target, while our body is lined parallel left like railroad tracks.

Let's not forget our posture and stance. An individual with poor posture will have difficulty with solid contact. They will either top the ball or hit behind it. The key is to maintain the proper posture throughout the swing. This starts with bending slightly from the hips forward with our backs as straight as possible. Also, our arms should hang comfortable down from our shoulders. A checkpoint is to be able to look down and see ones shoelaces.

The last principal is our stance. Its not just the width of the stance that is important, where your feet are placed is important as well. The back foot should be square. The reason for this is to insure the proper amount of hip turn in the backswing. The front foot should be angled out about twenty to twenty degrees. This allows for the proper clearing of the hips on the downswing, so we can achieve the weight shift that is desirable in a sound swing.

2 c. Bing cherries, pitted and quartered
2 medium-sized peaches, sliced
1 c. blueberries
1/2 c. old-fashioned rolled oats
1/2 c. brown sugar
1/2 c. flour
1/2 stick butter

Butter a 1 quart, shallow baking dish. Combine fruit and spread in bottom of baking dish. Crumble remaining ingredients together with your hands and sprinkle over the fruit. Mixture should be coarse and crumbly. Bake in 350 oven for 30 minutes or until top is browned. Serves 6.

CHERRY FLAN (CLAFOUTI)

3 c. pitted Bing cherries
Set cherries aside. In a mixing bowl or blender combine:

1 1/4 c. milk
1/3 c. sugar
1 Tbsp. vanilla
1/2 c. flour

Butter an 8-cup baking dish or glass pie pan. Pour half the batter in, add the cherries, then pour the remaining batter on top. Sprinkle sugar on top. Bake at 350 for one hour or until set. The top should be brown and puffy. It will deflate a bit when cooled. Sprinkle a little powdered sugar on just before serving.

POLICE BLOTTER

Some crimes never get tired. The Southampton 7-Eleven has again been targeted, this time by an out-of-town urinator. A 25-year-old Hoboken man was caught behind the store answering nature's call. He was taken into custody, issued a summons and released.

A LIPA employee was attacked by a dog as she attempted to read meters. According to the victim, a woman sent her German Shepherd after her, which ripped her pants and cut her leg, when the meter reader tried to defend herself against the canine, the dog's owner attacked her, grabbing her shirt and pushing her around. According to police, the LIPA woman's clothes were indeed damaged and she, "appeared exhausted."

Somebody called East Hampton Village Police to complain about people committing the heinous act of waxing cars on Main Street while wearing thongs. If they want, there are some cars in the Dan's Papers lot that could really use some waxing.

In Hampton Bays, a vicious repeat attack on a man's mailbox resulted in the numbers being removed from said box. According to the complainant, this is the third such attack in the past two weeks. The resulting damage has been assessed at upwards of two dollars.

A Southampton clothing store on Jobs Lane called police to report an unconscious man and woman in one of their dressing rooms. Upon the arrival of the police, the man in question was indeed passed out and apparently intoxicated according to Southampton Village Police. The 20-year-old Riverhead man was also in the possession of a substance thought to be marijuana and some pills thought to be Ecstasy. He was arrested and charged with criminal possession of a controlled substance and unlawful possession of marijuana, and held for arraignment in Southampton Town Court. The woman turned out to be an employee of the store and was not charged.

Two men were walking down Edgemere Road in Montauk, when they were spotted by police appearing "highly intoxicated." The twosome was carrying an oar and a life vest. When questioned by police, they claimed to have removed the items from a boat that was resting on a trailer near the Montauk Fire Department. The sailors returned the items and no charges were filed.

At Maidstone Park in Springs, violence broke out between two groups of teenagers. The gangs had rags wrapped around their knuckles, and were engaged in fisticuffs when police arrived. Three youths suffered facial lacerations and were treated at Southampton Hospital. No arrests were made.

Dan's LETTERS

A SPECIAL PLACE

Dear Dan,

A few months back you wrote one of the best descriptions of the East End I have ever read. With your permission, I would like to quote you on our new web page. If you could send me the article that would be great, it dealt with your narration of the special geographic and weather conditions that make this such a special place to live. Thanks

Our guests love the copy of Dan's Papers that we put in their room when they check in, thanks again...

Sincerely,

Gary E. Miller

SCHOOL FOR THOUGHT

Dear Dan,

I read your article "Official Apologies" (July 7) with great interest. I commend you for taking a firm stand in support of the Ross School expansion plan. The school is a gift to this community for many obvious reasons — which your article addressed very well. Its existence brings more competition in the area of education in both the private and public sectors. The East End schools are not known for their exemplary academic standards. In an area where taxes are continually rising, and the ratio of student to the tax base favors the student (as in most resort communities), we have not seen SAT scores skyrocket! A little more competition may bring that about.

Further, a more appropriate objection from Richard Amper and the Long Island Pine Barrens Society might be to the building of over-sized houses on small lots in this area. This may bring added tax revenue but it also adds to the already strained ecosystems, clogs roads and burdens services. If this building trend continues, the area will strangle itself and cease to attract the well-to-do summer population it now enjoys. Why not encourage the area to be known for its institutions of educational excellence rather than just the rich man's paradise where the larger house equals the status and ego of the owner. It has become "Hollywood East" and "Wall Street Wow." In the long run, the community is better served in every way by being known for its excellence and choice in education at all levels. The rich can afford to move elsewhere when the area self-destructs by overcrowding.

But the first class educational facilities in the community will stand to help those who actually live and raise families here.

In conclusion, Mr. Amper and the LIPBS should be reminded that if, as they say, their "sole objection" to the Ross School expansion plan is the "effect it might have on the drinking water quality", they must realize that the water quality has been destroyed over the years by the agricultural use of pesticides long before it became known that they were carcinogenic. (Perhaps, the reason for the very high incidence of breast cancer in Suffolk County.) If this is their objection to the project, they should concentrate on solving the water problem, but at the same time, welcome the presence and expansion of the Ross School/Institute to the area. We are lucky to have Courtney Sales Ross in the community, her vision and generosity can only benefit all of us here.

Congratulations on your article. Keep up the good work.

Yours truly,
Janer Maynard

550 Offices In 43 Countries, But Not In The Hamptons

"...Yet. Actually, they got here last week...sort of..." We're referring to the world's largest brokerage house — Merrill Lynch — Not to open an office but to conduct a series of free dinner seminars. When you have over a trillion dollars in assets you can afford to do things for free. The first dinner seminar was such a huge success we suggest that you reserve early for the next in the series as seats are limited.

Merrill Lynch and its top professional people are in the Hamptons to meet all you "High Net Worth Individuals" as well as all of you who will be — or expect to be a — "High Net Worth individual" by July 26 — the date of the next free dinner seminar. Before you turn your nose up at what may seem (but is not) a high pressure approach to make a stranger your investment partner, remember two things: 1. These guys from Merrill Lynch invented seminars, money management, IPO's, etc., so you know they must know what they're doing and, 2. Unlike hay fever a free dinner in the middle of summer is nothing to sneeze at — especially when you find out where the dinner will take place.

Merrill Lynch was founded in 1915, long before the Hamptons became fashionable. The company is rated the number one full service brokerage house in the world by Smart Money magazine and is rated number one in research by Institutional Investor magazine.

The three seminars that remain in this summer series will be held on July 26, August 9 and August 23. introduce institutional money managers who typically run pension, corporate and high net worth money accounts. The two main topics will be "Professional Managed Accounts" and "Investment Outlook Financial Planning". We have it on good authority that these seminars have heretofore been very successful in helping people attain their financial goals through successful financial planning. They're going to talk about asset allocations, risk tolerance and estate planning. If you become bored with this part of the seminar just tune out and ask for more wine. It's free.

The dinner seminar series will be hosted by the Farmhouse Restaurant in East Hampton. The Farmhouse has been voted "Best Restaurant in the Hamptons" for the past three years by the readers of Dan's Papers and remember that the dinner, the wine and the information are all free. In addition, Durney Vineyard, one of the most respected boutique vineyards in California, will conduct a free, informal wine tasting.

Call the Farmhouse for more information at 324-8585 or Vincent Simone, Leslie Frank or Rick Atkinson at Merrill Lynch — 800-851-9179.

We're not just about selling houses ...

*We're introducing
a new program ...
a commitment to community.*

Over the past twenty five years we've worked hard to earn our reputation as the area's leader in luxury home sales. Throughout that time we've also worked hard to make the Westhampton Beach area the best possible place to live -- through continuous support of our worthy local charities and not for profit organizations. Now you have an opportunity to participate by listing your home or property for sale as an exclusive with Norma Reynolds Realty! At closing we will donate -- in your name -- to one of these local causes, either Family Counseling Services, the Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center, the Breast Health Center at Southampton Hospital, Meals on Wheels or East End Hospice. Receive the benefits of an exclusive Norma Reynolds listing -- our extensive marketing and advertising programs and our dynamic selling team -- and know that you're also lending a helping hand. Call us today, we look forward to meeting you!

Now You Can Enjoy Beef Healthfully!

W

At the Half Circle Ranch want to help you continue to enjoy beef healthfully! To do so, we're going to great lengths to provide genetically lean, naturally fed, individually pampered beef which is simply delicious.

Two secrets to our success are (1) a pollution-free, high mountain setting and (2) a remarkable, new, genetically-lean breed of cattle called "Piedmontese."

PIEDMONTESE BEEF

Imagine a meat that looks like beef, cooks like beef and tastes like the very best beef, yet with fat and cholesterol content less than poultry or flounder. Now there is such a meat, and it is beef: Half Circle Pride Piedmontese Beef.

NATURALLY FED

In our beautiful, pollution-free, high mountain setting, our cattle enjoy

Low Fat! Low Cholesterol!

a natural diet of grass, oats, barley, and alfalfa. We maintain an environment free of drugs, pesticides and harmful chemicals.

Half Circle Pride Beef is certified organic by the OCIA (Organic Crop Improvement Association.)

CHEMICAL FREE

No growth stimulants, biological shots or other potentially harmful shots are administered. If at any time during an animal's life even a medical shot becomes necessary, Half Circle Ranch will sell the beef animal at a local auction as commercial livestock and thereby remove it from the ranch.

PAMPERED HERD

This herd is truly premium quality, both individually and collectively.

RICHLY DELICIOUS

Chefs and restaurant goers who have prepared and sampled Piedmontese beef rave at the tenderness and flavor. Independent, scientifically administered studies agree on both points, even proving by precise shearing force measurements that Piedmontese steak is easier to cut. And in spite of remarkably low fat and marbling content, the beef is very juicy and extremely delicious.
